frameworks and mechanisms including human rights instruments particularly in the context of supporting developing countries adaptation efforts The Study surveys the interface of human rights and climate change from the perspective of public international law It builds upon the work that has been carried out on this interface by reviewing the legal issues it raises and complementing existing analyses by providing a comprehensive legal overview of the area and a focus on obligations upon States and other actors connected with climate change The objective has therefore been to contribute to the global debate on climate change and human rights by offering a review of the legal dimensions of this interface as well as a survey of the sources of public international law potentially relevant to climate change and human rights in order to facilitate an understanding of what is meant in legal terms by human rights impacts of climate change and help identify ways in which international law can respond to this interaction
