class life in Philadelphia between 1876 and 1926 to discover the cultural roots of this search for order By looking at complex relationships among members of that city s middle class and three largely bourgeois commercial institutions newspapers department stores and railroads Hepp finds that the men and women of the middle class consistently reordered their world along rational lines According to Hepp this period was rife with evidence of creative reorganization that served to mold middle class life The department store was more than just an expanded dry goods emporium it was a middle class haven of order in the heart of a frenetic city an entirely new way of organizing merchandise for sale Redesigned newspapers brought well ordered news and entertainment to middle class homes and also carried retail advertisements to entice consumers downtown via train and streetcar The complex interiors of urban railroad stations reflected a rationalization of space and rail schedules embodied the modernized specialization of standard time In his fascinating investigation of similar patterns of behavior among commercial institutions Hepp exposes an important intersection between the histories of the city and the middle class In his careful reconstruction of this now vanished culture Hepp examines a wide variety of sources including diaries and memoirs left by middle class women and men of the region Following Philadelphians as they rode trains and trolleys read newspapers and shopped at department stores he uses their accounts as individualized guidebooks to middle class life in the metropolis And through a creative use of photographs floor plans maps and material culture The Middle Class City helps to reconstruct the physical settings of these enterprises and recreate everyday middle class life shedding new light on an underanalyzed historical group and the cultural history of twentieth century America The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1862 Dictionary Catalog of the History of the Americas New York Public Library.
