Material Matters Thomas Rau, Sabine Oberhuber, 2022-12-30 Our planet is a closed system with limited material resources yet our current economic model is designed in a one way direction from resource extraction to disposal leading to resource depletion This book proposes a new economic model offering an alternative to this linear take make waste economy Material Matters shows a way of creating a circular economy by using the unlimited resources we have renewable energy data and intelligence It describes a system based on circular business models centred on selling performance rather than ownership designing products and buildings as resource banks and equipping products with a material passport to ensure their usability for future generations Businesses thereby become custodians of materials rather than consumers of materials and sellers of products The book evokes the vision of a radically new economic model based on a compelling narrative supported with cases that have been developed in conjunction with major companies for example convincing Philips to sell light instead of lamps saving energy and materials by creating a whole new business model a case which has become iconic for the circular economy Material Matters is not a somber analysis of the state of the planet but a concrete and comprehensive agenda for change offering perspectives for taking action for business and individual consumers alike

Rethinking Leadership for a Green World Andrew Taylor, 2022-03-20 First James Lovelock and recently Prince William and David Attenborough believe that we have reached a tipping point in the process of climate change Whether they are right or not it is certainly true that the impact of humankind upon the ecology of the earth has reached a point where real changes in human behaviour are required If managers are to be enablers of planetary survival then we need to develop a new approach to risk which explicitly includes ecological limits upon economic behaviour This implies a fundamental reorientation of their role in allocating resources to minimise risk and maximise reward This book brings together some of the brightest contemporary thinkers on leadership complexity and sustainability to consider the big ideas that we will need to make the changes required and to outline the major themes that can inform a new approach to constructing a green world It looks at how to ensure that local models of sustainability are able to flourish in the context of global networks and presents specific case studies of markets and organisations that offer insights into the development integrated solutions and the leadership lessons we can learn Combining both theory and practice this book serves to guide business managers and provides deeper insight and critical perspectives on some of the key issues facing leaders moving towards the green economy It also provides useful supplementary reading for students in business and environmental studies

Feinman , Victor D. Thompson, 2025-10-09 The foundation of larger and more permanent communities and the cooperative nature of this process of sedentism was one of the most consequential transitions in human history Decades of archaeological research across the globe now indicate clearly that this process was not necessarily tied to a greater reliance on domesticated resources nor was it generally linked to a cessation of individual or household mobility For this reason the process of establishing larger and denser networks of social interaction was not necessarily unidirectional irreversible nor driven strictly by resource availability The process was highly social and the long term sustainability of these denser social aggregations and networks co occurred with the advent of new institutions and affiliations that often served to solidify the expanded interpersonal ties engendered by novel and more populated social contexts Yet consequentially the institutions modes of leadership affiliations and behaviors associated with settling down were markedly variable across time and space with variance often tied to the heritability concentration and distribution of the resources that sustained and financed these communities and their institutional components Resources and power were distributed to different degrees and were often situational Here we highlight and endeavor to account for variability in the tempo and timing of this process as well as the diverse paths that were taken in this key transformational episode in which the modes and scale of human cooperation

often were reconfigured
