Handbook Of Communication And Aging Research Leas Communication:

Handbook of Communication and Aging Research Jon F. Nussbaum, Justine Coupland, 2004-04-12 This second edition of the Handbook of Communication and Aging Research captures the ever changing and expanding domain of aging research Since it was first recognized that there is more to social aging than demography gerontology has needed a communication perspective Like the first edition this handbook sets out to demonstrate that aging is not only an individual process but an interactive one The study of communication can lead to an understanding of what it means to grow old We may age physiologically and chronologically but our social aging how we behave as social actors toward others and even how we align ourselves with or come to understand the signs of difference or change as we age are phenomena achieved primarily through communication experiences Synthesizing the vast amount of research that has been published on communication and aging in numerous international outlets over the last three decades the book s contributors include scholars from North America and the United Kingdom who are active researchers in the perspectives covered in their particular chapter Many of the chapters work to deny earlier images of aging as involving normative decrement to provide a picture of aging as a process of development involving positive choices and providing new opportunities A recurring theme in many chapters is that of the heterogeneity of the group of people who are variously categorized as older aged elderly or over 65 The contributors review the literature analytically in a way that reveals not only current theoretical and methodological approaches to communication and aging research but also sets the future agenda This handbook will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in gerontology developmental psychology and communication and in this updated edition will continue to play a key role in the study of communication and aging Women's Narratives of Health Disruption and Illness Jennifer M. Suspense Peter Vorderer, Hans Jurgen Wulff, Mike Friedrichsen, 2013-12-16 This volume begins with the general assumption that suspense is a major criterion for both an audience's selection and evaluation of entertaining media offerings This assumption is supported not only by the popularity of suspenseful narratives but also by the reasons users give for their actual choice of media contents Despite this there is no satisfying theory to describe and explain what suspense actually is how exactly it is caused by films or books and what kind of effect it has on audiences This book's main objective is to provide that theory by bringing together scholars from different disciplines who are working on the issue The editors goal is to reflect the state of the art as much as it is to highlight and encourage further developments in this area There are two ways of approaching the problem of describing and explaining suspense an analysis of suspenseful texts or the reception process Researchers who follow the more text oriented approach identify the uncertainty of the narrative outcome the threat or danger for the protagonist the play with time delay or other factors as important and necessary for the production of suspense The more reception oriented scholar focuses on the cognitive activities of audiences readers expectations the curiosity of onlookers their emotions and their relationships with the protagonists A correspondence between the two seems to be quite difficult though necessary to determine Both perspectives are important in order to describe and explain suspense Thus the editors utilize the thesis that suspense is an activity of the audience reader onlooker etc that is related to specific features and characteristics of the text books films etc

Their question is What kind of relation The answer comes from finding out how why and which elements of the text cause effects that are experienced as suspense Scholars from semiotics literary criticism cultural studies and film theory assess the problem from a text oriented point of view dealing primarily with the how and which Other scholars present the psychological perspective by focusing on the cognitive and emotional processes that underlie viewers experience of suspense that is the reception theory tries to answer the question of why suspenseful texts may be experienced as they are

Kathryn Greene, Valerian J. Derlega, Gust A. Yep, Sandra Petronio, 2003-06-20 As the HIV epidemic enters its third decade it remains one of the most pressing health issues of our time Many aspects of the disease remain under researched and inadequate attention has been given to the implications for the relationships and daily lives of those affected by HIV Disclosing an HIV diagnosis remains a decision process fraught with difficulty and despite encouraging medical advances an HIV diagnosis creates significant anxiety and distress about one's health, self-identity and close relationships. This book provides an overarching view of existing research on privacy and disclosure while bringing together two significant areas: self-disclosure as a communication process and the social relational consequences of HIV/AIDS. The unifying framework is communication privacy management and the focus of this volume is on private voluntary relational disclosure as opposed to forced or public disclosure. Utilizing numerous interviews with HIV patients and their families, the authors examine disclosure in a variety of social contexts including relationships with intimate partners, families, friends, health workers, and coworkers. Of note are the examinations of predictors of willingness to disclose HIV infection, the message features of disclosure, and the consequences of both disclosure and non-disclosure. This volume, with its personal exercises and sources of additional information, offers an invaluable resource for individuals living with HIV and their significant others as well as for professionals in the fields of health communication, social and health psychology, family therapy, clinical and counseling psychology, relationship research, infectious disease, and social service.

Written by a licensed therapist, this book is packed full of helpful advice and tips to overcome social anxiety and start building a stronger social circle, such as: Tips for moving past small talk; Advice for getting out of your own head; Suggestions for fun and memorable friend dates; Strategies for connecting meaningfully with other people. Everyone wants to feel connected. Here to Make Friends is the perfect companion for moving past the sometimes lonely post-school stage and into lasting, fulfilling friendships.

Aging, Media, and Culture C. Lee Harrington, Denise Bielby, Anthony R. Bardo, 2014-06-18 The intersections of aging, media, and culture are underexplored given trends in population aging, rapid increases in the mediation of everyday life, and the growing cultural significance of media consumption at the global level. This book brings together an international collection of critical scholars, both well established and up and coming, from the various academic disciplines that share a common interest in the future study of aging and media. This anthology of original articles integrates aging theory and media studies through a study of core issues including the media's influence on the construction of old age, the reciprocal influence of aging on media industries, age-based identities in a mediated world, issues of gender and sexuality in an aging society, and the practical implications of a more integrated approach between the two fields. The chapters explore the intersections between aging and media in the realms of advertising, marketing, television, film, music, celebrity, and social media, among others.

Cognitive Rehabilitation in Dementia Linda Clare, Robert T. Woods, 2001 The relevance of cognitive rehabilitation for people with dementia is becoming increasingly accepted by researchers and practitioners in the field This special issue draws together examples of state of the art research and systematic review by experts in this exciting and growing area The contributors show how cognitive rehabilitation approaches can be applied in different ways to help optimise functioning and address specific difficulties across the full spectrum of severity While the main focus is on the more commonly diagnosed forms of dementia treatment possibilities for people with fronto temporal dementia are also explored Cognitive rehabilitation interventions need to be grounded in a clear assessment of the profile of strengths and limitations in cognitive functioning and to demonstrate where possible that treatment effects extend beyond improvement on target measures to have a meaningful impact on wellbeing and quality of life For this reason the special issue includes contributions that explore detailed aspects of cognitive functioning or describe new developments in evaluating quality of life in dementia Cognitive rehabilitation it is suggested should be viewed as one important component of a holistic approach to helping people with dementia their families and those who care for them This special issue seeks both to provide information about what has already been achieved and to encourage and stimulate further progress

Handbook of the Psychology of Aging K Warner Schaie, Sherry L. Willis, 2010-12-21 The Handbook of the Psychology of Aging Seventh Edition provides a basic reference source on the behavioral processes of aging for researchers graduate students and professionals It also provides perspectives on the behavioral science of aging for researchers and professionals from other disciplines The book is organized into four parts

Part 1 reviews key methodological and analytical issues in aging research. It examines some of the major historical influences that might provide explanatory mechanisms for a better understanding of cohort and period differences in psychological aging processes. Part 2 includes chapters that discuss the basics and nuances of executive function, the history of the morphometric research on normal brain aging, and the neural changes that occur in the brain with aging. Part 3 deals with the social and health aspects of aging. It covers the beliefs that individuals have about how much they can control various outcomes in their life, the impact of stress on health and aging, and the interrelationships between health disparities, social class, and aging. Part 4 discusses the emotional aspects of aging, family caregiving, and mental disorders and legal capacities in older adults. Contains all the main areas of psychological gerontological research in one volume. Entire section on neuroscience and aging. Begins with a section on theory and methods. Edited by one of the fathers of gerontology. Schaie and contributors represent top scholars in gerontology.
