Hiroona Historical Romance Poetic Form:

Hiroona Horatio Nelson Huggins, 2015 With over nine thousand lines of rhyming verse Hiroona An Historical Romance in Poetic Form tells the fictionalized story of the Second Carib War of 1795-97 between Great Britain and the people then known as the Black Caribs with the aid of France. The poem is the vision of St Vincent born Anglican priest Horatio Nelson Huggins 1830-95 who blends the official history of the war with local legends collected from those who fought on each side to create an exciting narrative with heroic characters and an almost organic critique of the colonial project in the Caribbean. The Caribs led by chiefs Duvall Chetway based on Chief Joseph Chatoyer and Chetway's son Warramou fight to expel the British from the island and regain control. Woven into the narrative is the love triangle of Warramou Carib princess Rane and the Scottish soldier Crayton. Huggins's work offers a meaningful contribution to the evolution of a unique kind of West Indian consciousness at the end of the nineteenth century. Hiroona has until recently remained relatively unknown and this edition will be the first available since its posthumous publication in 1930. The text includes a historical essay that places Hiroona in various contexts and considers its significance to Caribbean literature. The objective of this work is to make available to scholars and students in a modern annotated edition a remarkable Caribbean literary work of the late 1800s hitherto known to and read by only a handful of scholars. It is beyond question an extraordinary work. And it is also beyond question a Caribbean work. Written long before the emergence of West Indian literature in the 1930s it reflects the kind of literary and cultural world which existed in Trinidad and elsewhere in the late nineteenth century yet it is unique in its ambition poetic form and length. Caribbean Literature in Transition, 1800-1920: Volume 1 Evelyn O'Callaghan, Tim Watson, 2021-01-14

This volume examines what Caribbean literature looked like before 1920 by surveying the print culture of the period. The emphasis is on narrative including an enormous range of genres in varying venues and in multiple languages of the Caribbean. Essays examine lesser known authors and writing previously marginalized as nonliterary popular writing in newspapers and pamphlets fiction and poetry such as romances sentimental novels and ballads non elite memoirs and letters such as the narratives of the enslaved or the working classes especially women. Many contributions are comparative multilingual and regional. Some infer the cultural presence of subaltern groups within the texts of the dominant classes. Almost all of the chapters move easily between time periods linking texts writers and literary movements in ways that expand traditional notions of literary influence and canon formation. Using literary cultural and historical analyses this book provides a complete re examination of early Caribbean literature. "Toubab La!" Literary Representations of Mixed-Race
