English, 2020-10-06 Reconstruction politics and race relations between freed blacks and the white establishment in Perry County Alabama In his fascinating in depth study Bertis D English analyzes why Perry County situated in the heart of a violence prone subregion of Alabama enjoyed more peaceful race relations and less bloodshed than several neighboring counties Choosing an atypical locality as central to his study English raises questions about factors affecting ethnic disturbances in the Black Belt and elsewhere in Alabama He also uses Perry County which he deems an anomalous county to caution against the tendency of some scholars to make sweeping generalizations about entire regions and subregions English contends Perry County was a relatively tranquil place with a set of extremely influential African American businessmen clergy politicians and other leaders during Reconstruction Together with egalitarian or opportunistic white citizens they headed a successful campaign for black agency and biracial cooperation that few counties in Alabama matched English also illustrates how a significant number of educational institutions a high density of African American residents and an unusually organized and informed African American population were essential factors in forming Perry County's character He likewise traces the development of religion in Perry the nineteenth century Baptist capital of Alabama and the emergence of civil rights in Perry an underemphasized center of activism during the twentieth century This well researched and comprehensive volume illuminates Perry County's history from the various perspectives of its black interracial and white inhabitants amplifying their own voices in a novel way The narrative includes rich personal details about ordinary and affluent people both free and unfree creating a distinctive resource that will be useful to scholars as well as a reference that will serve the needs of students and general readers

Coercion and Wage Labour Anamarija Batista, Viola Franziska Müller, Corinna Peres, 2023-12-07 Coercion and Wage Labour presents novel histories of people who experienced physical social political or cultural compulsion in the course of paid work Broad in scope the chapters examine diverse areas of work including textile production war industries civil service and domestic labour in contexts from the Middle Ages to the present day They demonstrate that wages have consistently shaped working people's experiences and failed to protect workers from coercion Instead wages emerge as versatile tools to bind control and exploit workers Remuneration mirrors the distribution of power in labour relations often separating employers physically and emotionally from their employees and disguising coercion The book makes historical narratives accessible for interdisciplinary audiences Most chapters are preceded by illustrations by artists invited to visually conceptualise the book's key messages and to emphasise the presence of the body and landscape in the realm of work In turn the chapter texts reflect back on the artworks creating an intense intermedial dialogue that offers mutually relational translations and narrations of labour coercion Other contributions written by art scholars discuss how coercion in remunerated labour is constructed and reflected in artistic practice The collection serves as an innovative and creative tool for teaching and raises awareness that narrating history is always contingent on the medium chosen and its inherent constraints and possibilities Praise for Coercion and Wage Labour Coercion and Wage Labour is a pioneering volume It makes a well founded break with the widespread misconception that wage labour is by definition free from coercion The fourteen historical case studies lead to the conclusion that wage labourers too were subject to many forms of coercion and that usually their freedom was and is only relative But something else makes this book special throughout the text there are artistic illustrations that enter into a dialogue with the individual chapters which in turn reflect on the images This creates an inspiring interaction that complements the volume's interdisciplinary nature Marcel van der Linden International Institute of Social History Amsterdam
