

Failed Attempts to Prove Contagion: 1958 Paper on Speculations Regarding Causes of Influenza

Influenza cannot be “transmitted” and appears simultaneously in places faster than available means of travel and contagionists wrongly turn effects and consequences into causes through misinterpretation of observations coupled with speculative unproven theories of disease.

Shaykh Ḥāfiẓ al-Ḥakamī (رحمته الله) stated:

The intent is that the negation of contagion¹ is absolute, it is upon its totality and within it is singling out Allāh (سُبْحَانَهُ وَتَعَالَى) with full disposal [of all affairs] in His creation...

And within that lies strengthening of the heart of the believers, aiding of them with the strength of reliance and soundness of certainty, and proof for them against the polytheists and all of the stubborn opposers.²

The superstition of contagion rests upon dismissing or ignoring the multi-factorial, multi-causal and often the very hidden nature of disease causation as a result of which people fall into confusing association with causation, wherein exaggeration is made in coincidental encounters, turning them into causes without any evidence at all. The Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) alluded to this affair in

¹ This speech might be perplexing to those who have been indoctrinated in the speculative sciences of the materialists and naturalists and they are advised to explore this matter with an open mind so that the superstitious beliefs they currently think are established scientific realities might become clear to them, particularly in the pseudoscience of virology.
