FAST FACTS

- The Great Pyramid is the largest limestone building in the world. When first built, the structure stood 481 feet (147 meters) tall, as tall as a 48-story building.
- The Great Pyramid has lost 30 feet (9 meters) off the top since the pyramids were built primarily as tombs for pharaohs.
- Historians think that it took 20,000 workers between 10 and 20 years to build the Great Pyramid.
- Construction on a pharaoh's tomb began when he took office and continued until he died. The pharaoh's life was a long one.

ABOUT ARCHITECTURE

Every day we learn about what they believed about the world. Many of these beliefs are still with us today.

Some people did not believe in the afterlife. They thought that life was just a long dream.

Some people think that the construction of the pyramids required a technology that was lost to time and that we could not build them today. It is hard to believe, but very few modern cities would be strong enough to make the blocks of heavy limestone that form the pyramids. The Egyptians did not use mortar to hold the stones together. They used a special glue that was made from a mixture of mud and straw.

The first type of pyramid the Egyptians built was a style called step pyramid. Step pyramids were made of mud bricks. The sides of step pyramids were not straight. They were made of smaller pyramids that would come later. The sides of the pyramid were made of mud bricks, and were therefore very rough.

Step pyramids were built with a different style. They were made of mud bricks, and were therefore very rough. The sides of the pyramid were made of mud bricks, and were therefore very rough. The sides of the pyramid were made of mud bricks, and were therefore very rough.
