A Handbook of Food Crime Allison Gray,Ronald Hinch,2019-10-09 Food today is over corporatized and under regulated It is involved in many immoral harmful and illegal practices along production distribution and consumption systems These problematic conditions have significant consequences on public health and well being nonhuman animals and the environment often simultaneously In this insightful book Gray and Hinch explore the phenomenon of food crime Through discussions of food safety food fraud food insecurity agricultural labour livestock welfare genetically modified foods food sustainability food waste food policy and food democracy they problematize current food systems and criticize their underlying ideologies Bringing together the best contemporary research in this area they argue for the importance of thinking criminologically about food and propose radical solutions to the realities of unjust food systems

Routledge Handbook of Landscape and Food Joshua Zeunert,Tim Waterman,2018-02-02 Since the turn of the millennium there has been a burgeoning interest in and literature of both landscape studies and food studies Landscape describes places as relationships and processes Landscapes create people s identities and guide their actions and their preferences while at the same time are shaped by the actions and forces of people Food as currency medium and sustenance is a fundamental part of those landscape relationships This volume brings together over fifty contributors from around the world in forty profoundly interdisciplinary chapters Chapter authors represent an astonishing range of disciplines from agronomy anthropology archaeology conservation countryside management cultural studies ecology ethics geography heritage studies landscape architecture landscape management and planning literature urban design and architecture Both food studies and landscape studies defy comprehension from the perspective of a single discipline and thus such a range is both necessary and enriching The Routledge Handbook of Landscape and Food is intended as a first port of call for scholars and researchers seeking to undertake new work at the many intersections of landscape and food Each chapter provides an authoritative overview a broad range of pertinent readings and references and seeks to identify areas where new research is needed though these may also be identified in the many fertile areas in which subjects and chapters overlap within the book

Urban Gardening as Politics Chiara Tornaghi,Chiara Certomà,2018-07-11 While most of the existing literature on community gardens and urban agriculture share a tendency towards either an advocacy view or a rather dismissive approach on the grounds of the co optation of food growing self help and voluntarism to the neoliberal agenda this collection investigates and reflects on the complex and sometimes contradictory nature of these initiatives It questions to what extent they address social inequality and injustice and interrogates them as forms of political agency that contest transform and re signify the urban Claims for land access the right to food the social benefits of city greening community conviviality and insurgent forms of planning are multiplying within policy advocacy and academic literature and are becoming increasingly manifested through the practice of urban gardening These claims are symptomatic of the way issues of social reproduction intersect with the environment as well as the fact that urban planning and the production of space remains a crucial point of an ever evolving debate on equity and justice in the city Amid a mushrooming over positive literature this book explores the initiatives of urban gardening critically rather than apologetically The contributors acknowledge that these initiatives are happening within neoliberal environments which promote among other things urban competition the dismantling of the welfare state the erasure of public space and ongoing austerity These initiatives thus can either be manifestation of new forms of solidarity political agency and citizenship or new tools for enclosure inequality and exclusion In designing this book the progressive stance of these initiatives has therefore been taken as a research question rather than as an assumption The result is a collection of chapters that explore potentials and limitations of political gardening as a practice to envision and implement a more sustainable and just city The Routledge Handbook of Food Ethics Mary Rawlinson, Caleb
