Missionaries, Converts, and Rabbis David B. Ruderman, 2020-05-01 An examination of the life and work of Alexander McCaul and his impact on Jewish Christian relations In Missionaries Converts and Rabbis David B Ruderman considers the life and works of prominent evangelical missionary Alexander McCaul 1799 1863 who was sent to Warsaw by the London Society for the Promotion of Christianity Amongst the Jews He and his family resided there for nearly a decade which afforded him the opportunity to become a scholar of Hebrew and rabbinic texts Returning to England he quickly rose up through the ranks of missionaries to become a leading figure and educator in the organization and eventually a professor of post biblical studies at Kings College London In 1837 McCaul published The Old Paths a powerful critique of rabbinic Judaism that once translated into Hebrew and other languages provoked controversy among Jews and Christians alike Ruderman first examines McCaul in his complexity as a Hebraist affectionately supportive of Jews while opposing the rabbis He then focuses his attention on a larger network of his associates both allies and foes who interacted with him and his ideas two converts who came under his influence but eventually broke from him two evangelical colleagues who challenged his aggressive proselytizing among the Jews and lastly three Jewish thinkers two well known scholars from Eastern Europe and a rabbi from Syria who refuted his charges against the rabbis and constructed their own justifications for Judaism in the mid nineteenth century Missionaries Converts and Rabbis reconstructs a broad transnational conversation between Christians Jews and those in between opening a new vista for understanding Jewish and Christian thought and the entanglements between the two faith communities that persist in the modern era Extending the geographical and chronological reach of his previous books Ruderman continues his exploration of the impact of Jewish Christian relations on Jewish self reflection and the phenomenon of mingled identities in early modern and modern Europe

Feminist Theory and the Bible Esther Fuchs, 2016-02-23 Feminist Theory and the Bible Interrogating the Sources conceptualizes contextualizes and maps a new kind of burgeoning scholarship that has grown up in recent decades This scholarship emerged in the margins of Feminist Studies and Biblical Studies and has yet to find a foothold in either one of these more established contexts In this book Esther Fuchs argues that in order to find an enduring stable place in the academe this scholarship requires a theoretical perspective Biblical Studies as a whole has not yet been sufficiently theorized as an academic field and currently consists of multiple disciplines relying for the most part on traditional scholarly discourses In this regard Feminist Biblical Studies is both a departure from and an important supplement to both Feminist Studies and Biblical Studies

Isaac Orobio Carsten Wilke, 2018-11-05 The series Studies and Texts in Scepticism contains monographs translations and collected essays exploring scepticism in its dual manifestation as a purely philosophical tradition and as a set of sceptical strategies concepts and attitudes in the cultural field especially in religions perhaps most notably in Judaism In such cultural contexts scepticism manifests as a critical attitude towards different dimensions and systems of secular or revealed knowledge and towards religious and political authorities It is not merely an intellectual or theoretical worldview but a critical form of life that expresses itself in such diverse phenomena as religion literature and society Further book series of the Maimonides Centre for Advanced Studies are Jewish Thought Philosophy and Religion and the Yearbook of the Maimonides Centre for Advances Studies

Jewish Feeling Richa Dwor, 2015-10-22 Jewish Feeling brings together affect theory and Jewish Studies to trace Jewish difference in literary works by nineteenth century Anglo Jewish authors Dwor argues that midrash a classical rabbinic interpretive form is a site of Jewish feeling and that literary works underpinned by midrashic concepts engage affect in a distinctly Jewish way The book thus emphasises the theological function of literature and also the new opportunities afforded by nineteenth century literary forms for Jewish women s theological expression For authors such as Grace Aguilar 1816 1847 and Amy Levy 1861 1889 feeling is a complex and overlapping category that facilitates the transmission of Jewish ways of thinking into English literary forms Dwor reads them alongside George Eliot herself deeply engaged with issues of contemporary Jewish identity This sheds new light on Eliot by positioning her works in a nexus of Jewish forms and concerns Ultimately and despite considerable differences in style and outlook Aguilar and Levy are shown to deploy Jewish feeling in their ethics of futurity resistance to conversion and closure and in their foregrounding of a model of reading with feeling

The Jewess in Nineteenth-Century British Literary Culture Nadia Valman, 2007-04-12 Stories about Jewesses proliferated in nineteenth century Britain as debates about the place of the Jews in the nation raged While previous scholarship has explored the prevalence of antisemitic stereotypes in this period Nadia Valman argues that the figure of the Jewess virtuous appealing and sacrificial reveals how hostility towards Jews was accompanied by pity identification and desire Reading a range of texts from popular romance to the realist novel she investigates how the complex figure of the Jewess brought the instabilities of nineteenth century religious racial and national identity into uniquely sharp focus Tracing the narrative of the Jewess from its beginnings in Romantic and Evangelical literature and reading canonical writers including Walter Scott George Eliot and Anthony Trollope alongside more minor figures such as Charlotte Elizabeth Tonna Grace Aguilar and Amy Levy Valman demonstrates the remarkable persistence of this narrative and its myriad transformations across the century

Lesa Scholl, Emily Morris, 2022-12-15 Since the late twentieth century there has been a strategic campaign to recover the impact of Victorian women writers in the field of English literature However with the increased understanding of the importance of interdisciplinarity in the twenty first century there is a need to extend this campaign beyond literary studies in order to recognise the role of women writers across the nineteenth century a time that was intrinsically interdisciplinary in approach to scholarly writing and public intellectual engagement
