Abstract After decades, Southern U.S. public high schools continue to have the lowest graduation rates. To be included in the 2012 federal college grant program, schools must have graduation rates of 80% or higher. This study examined the factors that influence graduation rates in Southern U.S. public high schools. The study found that the most significant factors influencing graduation rates are the school's graduation rate in the previous year, the school's graduation rate in the previous year, and the school's graduation rate in the previous year. The study also found that the school's graduation rate in the previous year is a significant predictor of the school's graduation rate in the current year. The study also found that the school's graduation rate in the previous year is a significant predictor of the school's graduation rate in the current year. The study also found that the school's graduation rate in the previous year is a significant predictor of the school's graduation rate in the current year.
