American Literature in Transition, 1990-2000

Stephen J. Burn,2017-12-28 Written in the shadow of the approaching millennium American literature in the 1990s was beset by bleak announcements of the end of books the end of postmodernism and even the end of literature Yet as conservative critics marked the century s twilight hours by launching elegies for the conventional canon American writers proved the continuing vitality of their literature by reinvigorating inherited forms by adopting and adapting emerging technologies to narrative ends and by finding new voices that had remained outside that canon for too long By reading 1990s literature in a sequence of shifting contexts from independent presses to the AIDS crisis and from angelology to virtual reality American Literature in Transition 1990 2000 provides the fullest map yet of the changing shape of a rich and diverse decade s literary production It offers new perspectives on the period s well known landmarks Toni Morrison Thomas Pynchon David Foster Wallace but also overdue recognition to writers such as Ana Castillo Evan Dara Steve Erickson and Carole Maso dropping the A bomb and how that has resonated through time to Jacobs reflections on the different ways in which Hiroshima and its memorialization are experienced today each chapter considers how this moment in time emerges persistently in public and cultural consciousness The discussions here are often difficult sometimes controversial and at times oppositional reflecting the characteristics of A bomb scholarship more broadly The aim is to explore the various ways in which Hiroshima is remembered but also to consider the ongoing legacy and impact of atomic warfare the reverberations of which remain powerfully felt

Habermas and Literature Geoff Boucher, 2021-06-03 Although Habermas has written about the cultural role of literature and about literary works he has not systematically articulated a literary critical method as a component of either communicative reason or post metaphysical thinking Habermas and Literature brings Habermasian concepts and categories into contact with aesthetic and cultural theories in and around the Frankfurt School and beyond Its central claim is that Habermas contribution to literary and cultural criticism is the concept of literary rationality and the notion that literature performs a key role in the formation of the modern social imaginary Habermas and Literature maintains that literary works have two faces discursive intervention in the public sphere and personal integration of imaginative disclosures that depend upon two modalities of literary reception critique and identification It develops the resulting literary theory through detailed discussion of the theories advanced by Habermas followed in each case by synthetic and reconstructive argumentation that brings the framework of communicative reason into dialogue with literary methods aesthetic theories and psychoanalytic categories It does so through close engagement with debates around aesthetic rationality world disclosure social imaginaries post secular society and the utopian demand for happiness articulated by artworks In the process the Habermasian position is critically reconstructed when necessary with reference to psychoanalytic and literary theories and tested in relation to demanding fiction and popular works
