Take a closer look at the images above. Each is home to a variety of plants and animals, but no two are the same. Although they're all capable to life, there are quite a lot of differences too. Many of these differences are abiotic, or non-living parts of the environment. Abiotic factors include temperature, the amount of oxygen in the air or water, and the kind of soil present.

Earth is an amazing planet. It has many different environments that make perfect homes for millions of species. The largest major habitats that exist worldwide are known as biomes. Most likely, you're familiar with many of these: desert, rainforest, grassland, etc. Each biome is unique and has its own set of characteristics that make it different from the others. The study of biomes is called biogeography, or the amazing variety of life that makes our Earth so abundant in biodiversity.

How many biomes are there? Do all water environments constitute a single aquatic biome? Are all fire-filled ecosystems considered a forest biome? The number of biomes you could simply depend on how specific you'd like to be. Let's take a look at some of the largest biomes, and the abiotic and biotic factors that define them.

Marine

Freshwater

Savanna

Aquatic Biomes Since water covers over 70% of the Earth, the largest biomes are the aquatic biomes. Marine aquatic biomes include coral reefs and estuaries, but the two major ones are the marine and freshwater biomes. The marine biome, made up of the world's oceans, is so big it's usually divided into deep or shallow. Evidence is that the deep sea is actually 4 times larger than all of Earth's other biomes combined. The freshwater biome, on the other hand, is much smaller. It includes lakes, rivers, and ponds. The freshwater biome is especially important to us because it provides the water that we use to drink. All aquatic biomes provide homes for diverse plant and animal life, including many species of fish, whales, and other aquatic species.

Grassland Grassland biomes live up to their name! They're made up of open and very few trees. The two major grassland biomes are the savanna and temperate grassland. The savanna is a type of grassland that covers half of Africa and large parts of Australia. These areas have a 6-8 month wet season in the summer and a 4-6 month dry season in the winter. Elephants, giraffes, and zebras are common in a savanna. The temperate grasslands, on the other hand, make up the plains of middle America.
