Faugeras, 2006-01-16 Abstract Biological vision is a rather fascinating domain of research Scientists of various origins like biology medicine neurophysiology engineering mathematics etc aim to understand the processes leading to visual perception process and at reproducing such systems Understanding the environment is most of the time done through visual perception which appears to be one of the most fundamental sensory abilities in humans and therefore a significant amount of research effort has been dedicated towards modelling and reproducing human visual abilities Mathematical methods play a central role in this endeavour Introduction David Marr's theory as a pioneering step towards understanding visual perception In his view human vision was based on a complete surface reconstruction of the environment that was then used to address visual subtasks This approach was proven to be insufficient by neurobiologists and complementary ideas from statistical pattern recognition and artificial intelligence were introduced to better address the visual perception problem In this framework visual perception is represented by a set of actions and rules connecting these actions The emerging concept of active vision consists of a selective visual perception paradigm that is basically equivalent to recovering from the environment the minimal piece of information required to address a particular task of interest

Patient Data Management in Intensive Care
Kurt Lenz, Philipp G.H. Metnitz, 2012-12-06

Recent technological innovations influenced primarily by the development of more sophisticated faster and cheaper computer systems permitted also the evolution of more affordable systems for Patient Data Management so called PDM Systems The experience of the authors on one of the first PDMS installation sites in Europe shows that the purchase of such a system is not an easy task since accurate data are not available in a comparable format Therefore the first part of the book is devoted to a comparison of already installed commercially distributed bedside based PDMS with regard to their specifications functions and performance The methods included a questionnaire with detailed questions for the vendors to answer and a table of functions comparing the most important functions which should be included in a PDMS With that list the different systems which were all in clinical use were checked for the availability and the way of use of these functions To evaluate variations in the systems performance an information retrieval test was designed and executed In the second part the different vendors whose systems were included in the study were to describe the systems from their viewpoints The third part contains papers describing the users experiences The fourth and last part shows how to use PDMS data for scientific and therapeutic purposes including two papers on clinical expert systems Thus this book provides valuable information for clinicians and hospital managers who have to decide on the purchase of a Patient Data Management System
