Language And Conceptualization Language Culture And Cognition:

Language and Conceptualization Jan Nuyts, Eric Pederson, 1999 To what extent is conceptualisation based on linguistic representation And to what extent is it variable across cultures communities or even individuals Of crucial importance in the attempt to develop a comprehensive theory of human cognition these remain amongst the most difficult of questions in the cognitive sciences This volume brings together ten new contributions from leading scholars working in a wide cross section of disciplines including linguistics anthropology psychology and philosophy

Approaches to Language, Culture, and Cognition M. Yamaguchi, D. Tay, B. Blount, 2014-08-28 Approaches to Language Culture and Cognition aims to bring cognitive linguistics and linguistic anthropology closer together calling for further investigations of language and culture from cognitively informed perspectives against the backdrop of the current trend of linguistic anthropology

Event Representation in Language and Cognition Jürgen Bohnemeyer, Eric Pederson, 2010-12-23 Event Representation in Language and Cognition examines new research into how the mind deals with the experience of events Empirical research into the cognitive processes involved when people view events and talk about them is still a young field The chapters by leading experts draw on data from the description of events in spoken and signed languages first and second language acquisition co speech gesture and eye movements during language production and from non linguistic categorization and other tasks The book highlights newly found evidence for how perception thought and language constrain each other in the experience of events It will be of particular interest to linguists psychologists and philosophers as well as to anyone interested in the representation and processing of events

Inner Worlds Albert Kamp, 2021-11-22 In the dynamic interchange between authors texts and readers that occurs during the reading process readers are stimulated by the author to create complex inner representations of the reality presented in a text The cognitive linguistic approach outlined in the first part of Inner Worlds offers a set of analytical tools that can be instructively applied to the book of Jonah to examine how the text presents its own reality to the reader Retranslated with an eye to the distinct nuances in the Hebrew the text of Jonah reveals a range of suggestive dynamic patterns that show the irony of Jonah s limited perspectives on his misfortunes compared with the transcendent perspective of a gracious God

Constructions in Cognitive Contexts Franziska Günther, 2016-11-07 In what ways are language cognition and perception interrelated Do they influence each other This book casts a fresh light on these questions by putting individual speakers cognitive contexts i e their usage preferences and entrenched patterns of linguistic knowledge into the focus of investigation It presents findings from original experimental research on spatial language use which indicate that these individual specific factors indeed play a central role in determining whether or not differences in the current and or habitual linguistic behaviour of speakers of German and English are systematically correlated with differences in non linguistic behaviour visual attention allocation to and memory for spatial referent scenes These findings form the basis of a new speaker focused usage based model of linguistic relativity which defines language perception cognition effects as a phenomenon which primarily occurs within individual speakers rather than between speakers or speech communities

Culture, Body, and Language Farzad Sharifian, René Dirven, Ning Yu, Susanne Niemeier, 2008-11-03 One of the central themes in cognitive linguistics is the uniquely human development of some higher potential called the mind and more particularly the intertwining of body and mind which has come to be known as embodiment Several books and volumes have explored this theme in length However the interaction between culture body and language has not received the due attention that it deserves Naturally any serious exploration of the interface between body language and culture would require an analytical tool that would capture the ways in which different cultural groups conceptualize their feelings thinking and other experiences in relation to body and language A well established notion that appears to be promising in this direction is that of cultural models constituting the building blocks of a group's cultural cognition The volume results from an attempt to bring together a group of scholars from various language backgrounds to make a collective attempt to explore the relationship between body language and culture by focusing on conceptualizations of the heart and other internal body organs across a number of languages The general aim of this venture is to explore the ways in which internal body organs have been employed in different languages to conceptualize human experiences such as emotions and or workings of the mind and b the cultural models that appear to account for the observed similarities as well as differences of the various conceptualizations of internal body organs The volume as a whole engages not only with linguistic analyses of terms that refer to internal body organs across different languages but also with the origin of the cultural models that are associated with internal body organs in different cultural systems such as ethnomedical and religious traditions Some contributions also discuss their findings in relations to some philosophical doctrines that have addressed the relationship between mind body and language such as that of Descartes

Cognitive Approaches to Tense, Aspect, and Epistemic Modality Adeline Patard, Frank

Brisard,2011 This volume addresses problems of semantics regarding the analysis of tense and aspect TA markers in a variety of languages including Arabic Croatian English French German Russian Thai and Turkish Its main interest goes out to epistemic uses of such markers whereby epistemic modality is understood as indicating a degree of compatibility between the modal world and the factual world Declerck All contributions moreover tackle these problems from a more or less cognitive point of view with some of them insisting on the need to provide a unifying explanation for all usage types temporal and non temporal and all of them accepting the premise that the semantics of TA categories essentially refers to subjective rather than objective concerns The volume also represents one of the first attempts to gather accounts of TA marking in various languages that are explicitly set within the framework of Cognitive Grammar Ultimately this volume aims to contribute to establishing an awareness that modal meaning elements are directly relevant to the analysis of the grammar of time

metonymic processes The volume is concluded by Part IV the three papers of which attempt to reconsider some TEFL issues from a cognitive linguistic point of view Language in Development Gita Martohardjono, Suzanne Flynn, 2021-08-17
