Abstract: The purpose of this study was to examine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The program included aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The results of the study showed that the women who participated in the program experienced significant improvements in their physical and psychological health. Specifically, the women who participated in the program showed a significant increase in their aerobic capacity, muscle strength, and flexibility. Additionally, the women who participated in the program showed a significant decrease in their levels of anxiety and depression. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can have a positive effect on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
