

MACROECONOMICS

Introduction

The study of the economy as a whole, including the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services. It examines the behavior of the economy as a whole, including the interactions between the government, the private sector, and the foreign sector.

The aggregate demand curve (AD) represents the total demand for goods and services in the economy. It is downward-sloping because, as the price level falls, the quantity of goods and services demanded increases. The short-run aggregate supply curve (SRAS) is upward-sloping because, as the price level rises, the quantity of goods and services supplied increases.

Aggregate Demand

Aggregate demand (AD) is the total demand for goods and services in the economy. It is the sum of the demand for goods and services by households, businesses, the government, and the foreign sector.

The short-run aggregate supply curve (SRAS) represents the total supply of goods and services in the economy in the short run. It is upward-sloping because, as the price level rises, the quantity of goods and services supplied increases.

Long-Run Aggregate Supply

Long-run aggregate supply (LRAS) is the total supply of goods and services in the economy in the long run. It is vertical because, in the long run, the quantity of goods and services supplied is determined by the economy's resources and technology, not by the price level.
