Links to the Diasporic Homeland Russell King, Anastasia Christou, Peggy Levitt, 2015-10-14 This book examines return mobilities to and from ancestral homelands of the second generation and beyond It presents cutting edge empirical research framed within the mobilities transnational and return migration diaspora paradigms on a trans local and global scale The book is unique in presenting not only a variety of return movements including short term visits and longer term return migrations but also circulatory movements within transnational social fields while engaging with notions of home belonging identity and generation The individual contributions range widely over different ethnic national regional and global settings including Europe North America the Caribbean the Gulf and Africa The result is a remapping of the conceptualisation of diaspora and of the role of successive generations in the diasporic experience as well as a nuancing of the concepts of return migration and transnationalism by their extension to the second and subsequent generations of immigrants This book was originally published as a special issue of Mobilities

Mobilities of Return John Taylor, Helen Lee, 2017-12-15 In recent decades the term mobility has emerged as a defining paradigm within the humanities For scholars engaged in the multidisciplinary topics and perspectives now often embraced by the term Pacific

Studies it has been a much more longstanding and persistent concern Even so specific questions regarding mobilities of return that is the movement of people back to places that are designated however ambiguously or ambivalently as home have tended to take a back seat within more recent discussions of mobility transnationalism and migration This volume situates return mobility as a starting point for understanding the broader context and experience of human mobility community and identity in the Pacific region and beyond Through diverse case studies spanning the Pacific region it demonstrates the extent to which the prospect and practice of returning home or of navigating returns between multiple homes is a central rather than peripheral component of contemporary Pacific Islander mobilities and identities everywhere

Diasporic Mobilities on Vacation Lauren B. Wagner, 2023-04-26 Diasporic Mobilities on Vacation is a nuanced exploration of the embodied and affective practices of Moroccans from Europe visiting Morocco for summer vacation Rather than characterizing them as uncomfortably split between homelands this book focuses on how their touristic leisure practices create their own space of diasporic belonging An expert on Moroccan diaspora communities and mobile lifestyles the book draws on multi sited and mobile ethnographic research to take the reader along on the journey home and experience the daily lives of diasporic visitors Their practices activities and encounters on vacation offer insights into larger issues of class leisure consumption and transnational belonging in South to North migration contexts Concretely the book shows how these holiday encounters simultaneously generate integration into Morocco for migrant descendants who can feel at home in this homeland and differentiation from others in how they embody Moroccaness as social and material actors This book shows how seemingly frivolous practices of leisure have material consequences for individuals who belong across homelands Positioned at the intersection of migration studies leisure and tourism mobilities and ethnomethodology and practice theory this book is a worthwhile read for scholars and students indeed anyone questioning or experiencing problems of belonging in transnational and diasporic contexts

The "Return" of British-Born Cypriots to Cyprus Janine Teerling, 2014-10-20 The post war decades of the 1950s to the 1970s saw a mass migration from Cyprus to the UK More recent years however have witnessed a return to Cyprus of the British born children of Cypriot migrants in the UK Drawing on multi site fieldwork and adopting a life narrative approach this book offers a refreshing and contemporary account of the motives experiences and life views of these second generation British Cypriots as they choose to build their lives in their parents birth country a Cyprus that has been dramatically altered by globalisation mass tourism and immigration since the first generation of immigrants left for British shores Unlike their parents who moved from Cyprus to the UK mainly out of economic necessity this new generation of migrants tends to view their relocation to Cyprus as a lifestyle choice And while the first generation of Cypriot migrants in the UK generally worked and socialised within the bounds of the Cypriot community the British born return migrants in Cyprus embrace a more international lifestyle beyond primordial ethnic or national boundaries observations which challenge the hypothesis that second generation return migration is based on an essential longing to go back to one s roots The author
