Hermeneutics And Honor Negotiating Female Public Space In Islamicate Societies:

Hermeneutics and Honor Anan Ameri, 1999 Women's traversal of public space in Islamicate societies and the ensuing process of negotiating gendered identities are the central concerns of this collection of essays. The dichotomy between private and public spheres upheld as axiomatic for most societies has recently been challenged by scholars as an artificial construct. For women in particular, the demarcation between the two spheres has become blurred by the enormous public consequences of their private behaviour. Elaborate cultural codes of honour and traditional masculinist interpretations of scripture have reinforced the public-private polarity and restricted Muslim women's access to the public realm as conventionally defined. The distinguished contributors to this volume provide insight into how women from different social strata and historical periods in various Islamicate societies have creatively engaged with these limitations upon their behaviour.

Ottoman Women in Public Space, 2016-05-09 Using a wealth of primary sources and covering the entire Ottoman period, Ottoman Women in Public Space challenges the traditional view that sees Ottoman women as a largely silent element of society restricted to the home and not seen beyond the walls of the house or the public bath. Instead, taking women in a variety of roles as economic and political actors, prostitutes, flirts, and slaves, the book argues that women were active participants in the public space, visible, present, and an essential element in the everyday public life of the empire. Ottoman Women in Public Space thus offers a vibrant and dynamic understanding of Ottoman history. Contributors are Edith G. I. in Ambros, Ebru Boyar, Palmira Brummett, Kate Fleet, and Svetla Ianeva.

Women and Public Space in Turkey Selda Tuncer, 2018-06-21 Turkey's process of modernization developed rapidly during the second half of the twentieth century. New social and legal reforms were institutionalized, and political and economic changes located the country as a more liberated Western-style society. Women and Public Space in Turkey provides a historical understanding of women's experiences of this modernization between 1950 and 1980, a vital period in which their participation in urban public life expanded through higher education and employment. Selda Tuncer examines the precise conditions that enabled women to leave the home and reveals how they perceived and experienced urban public space and social relations. Drawing on interviews with two generations of women from Ankara and using personal family photographs, the book provides invaluable insights into women in a predominantly Muslim society who are living in a highly secular social context. Tuncer specifically focuses on women's everyday experiences and discusses how the relationship between women and public space was actually controlled and regulated by different notions of domestication, especially in the micro-politics of daily life. The book sheds new light on the gendered processes of nation-building, socio-cultural transformations, and the crucial connections between gender, modernity, and the urban experience in a non-Western context.

Can Muslims Think? Muneeb Hafiz, 2022-06-14 As Europe goes astray, deeply conflicted about where it is within and with the world it does not know what it wants to know about or do with the racial subject. In this situation, the Muslim becomes an intense source of anxiety, one that is at once terrifying and called to answer for Europe's existential fear of relegation Islamophobia thus represents both the racism constitutive of European modernity and is also symptomatic of contemporary transformations in racist power knowledge and governance propelled by technologies and economies of endless wars on terror But how might the Muslim speak about the world its past and unfolding terrors Which questions must she answer and which answers does Europe deem acceptable Presenting a speculative theory of the post racial subject of Islamophobia Can Muslims Think is an attempt to build a vocabulary for analyzing the complexities of racism today its potential futurity and techniques for its dismantling

Coming of Age in Medieval Egypt Eve Krakowski, 2019-03-19 Much of what we know about life in the medieval Islamic Middle East comes from texts written to impart religious ideals or to chronicle the movements of great men How did women participate in the societies these texts describe What about non Muslims whose own religious traditions descended partly from pre Islamic late antiquity Coming of Age in Medieval Egypt approaches these questions through Jewish women's adolescence in Fatimid and Ayyubid Egypt and Syria c 969 1250 Using hundreds of everyday papers preserved in the Cairo Geniza Eve Krakowski follows the lives of girls from different social classes rich and poor secluded and physically mobile as they prepared to marry and become social adults She argues that the families on whom these girls depended were more varied fragmented and fluid than has been thought Krakowski also suggests a new approach to religious identity in premodern Islamic societies and to the history of rabbinic Judaism Through the lens of women's coming of age she demonstrates that even Jews who faithfully observed rabbinic law did not always understand the world in rabbinic terms By tracing the fault lines between rabbinic legal practice and its practitioners lives Krakowski explains how rabbinic Judaism adapted to the Islamic Middle Ages Coming of Age in Medieval Egypt offers a new way to understand how women took part in premodern Middle Eastern societies and how families and religious law worked in the medieval Islamic world

The Production of Gendered Knowledge of War Annika Björkdahl, Johanna Mannergren, 2025-04-02. This edited volume critically investigates women's knowledge about war and explores the epistemic agency of women in a range of contemporary settings across the globe. Women are deeply affected by war, participate in war and resist war. At the same time, knowledge production often ignores and marginalizes women's experiences and gendered ways of knowing war. From Colombia to Israel and Palestine, Liberia, Mali, Myanmar, Nepal, North America, Northern Iraq and Ukraine, the chapters in this book illuminate gendered knowledge production in and about different conflict-affected sites. By taking the embodied and narrative epistemic agency of local knowers seriously, new insights are thereby presented about the role women play in producing knowledge about war. This book proposes new theoretical vantage points in order to understand how epistemic power and epistemic violence are closely related. Bringing the topic of knowledge production into the so-called Women, Peace and Security (WPS) agenda, it analyses how knowledge of the gendered nature of war and security is produced and circulated and argues that the WPS agenda is a system of knowledge with its own omissions and silences. By theorizing gendered knowledge production and amplifying the voices of women as epistemic agents, this book advances scholarship on gender and war. This book will be of much interest to students of feminist studies, peace studies, war and conflict studies and International Relations. Women in the Mediterranean Leila Simona Talani, Serena Giusti, 2019-12-18. The book addresses the challenges faced by women on the two shores of the Mediterranean from a multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspective. While in the European Union's EU Mediterranean countries, inequality is mostly linked to the social sphere and in particular refers to labour market dynamics in the Middle East and Northern Africa (MENA) area, the situation is more complicated as the social and private spheres are blended and cultural and religious factors have a great impact on women's autonomy and opportunities beyond the family perimeter. The different challenges women are facing on the two sides of the Mediterranean have sometimes originated incomprehension and misperceptions. Western-supported policies devoted to fill the gap between men and women in the MENA area have overlooked countries' peculiarities, simply exporting models tailored for EU's member states. The EU's attempts to strengthen relations with the Mediterranean countries on a multilevel basis have not rescued women from marginalisation. Nevertheless during the 2011 awakening women played an important role in activating civil society. They are still considered as a key part of the fight against terrorism and radicalisation although in some countries their condition has worsened after secular regimes have been downturned. The number of migrant women has increased and not differently from men they are looking for opportunities and better conditions of life while Western media tend to present them in a stereotyped way either as traumatized victim and or as caring mother. There are other misleading common places which need to be better conceptualised and understood such as the alleged incompatibility between Islam and women rights. Unfortunately women's rights are still under attack even in European countries where they are considered consolidated. The chapters in this book were originally published in a special issue of the Journal of the Balkans and Near Eastern Studies.

Women in Place Nazanin Shahrokni, 2019-12-24 While much has been written about the impact of the 1979 Islamic revolution on life in Iran discussions about the everyday life of Iranian women have been glaringly missing. Women in Place offers a gripping inquiry into gender segregation policies and women's rights in contemporary Iran. Author Nazanin Shahrokni takes us onto gender segregated buses inside a women only park and outside the closed doors of stadiums where women are banned from attending men's soccer matches. The Islamic character of the state she demonstrates has had to coexist, fuse and compete with technocratic imperatives pragmatic considerations regarding the viability of the state international influences and global trends. Through a retelling of the past four decades of state policy regulating gender boundaries Women in Place challenges notions of the Iranian state as overly unitary ideological and isolated from social forces and pushes us to contemplate the changing place of women in a social order shaped by capitalism state sanctioned Islamism and debates about women's rights. Shahrokni throws into sharp relief the ways in which the state strives to constantly regulate and contain women's bodies and movements within the boundaries of the proper but simultaneously invests in and claims credit for their expanded access to public spaces.

Civil Society and Women Activists in the Middle East Wanda Krause, 2012-05-27 In the Middle East and in Egypt in particular there has always been a tendency to accord complete supremacy to the authority and might of the state and to see society as a separate powerless entity. However after the uprising of 2011 this assumption was turned on its head. And it is the wide range of political activity beyond the remit of the official state where Wanda Krause locates a dynamic potential for political change from the bottom up. She looks in particular at the influential role of women's private voluntary organisations in Egypt in shaping concepts of civil society and democracy. Exploring both secular and Islamist organisations she offers a steadfast critique of the view that Islamic women activists are insignificant backward or uncivil. Krause's examination of women activists in Egypt today is vital for those interested in Middle East and Gender Studies as well as those researching the wider issues of civil society and democratisation.

Raqs in the City Heather D. Ward,2024-07-26 In the city of Cairo certain spaces bear strong historical associations with belly dance belly dancers and professional entertainment in general Azbakiyah Imad al Din Street and Muhammad Ali Street were all staging grounds for innovations in Egyptian belly dance as well as in Egyptian music song and theater at the turn of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and in the Egyptian popular imagination these places continue to be linked to entertainment and entertainers However research reveals that the ties binding these spaces to entertainment extend much deeper in some cases this relationship can be traced back to the Fatimid era The longstanding associations between belly dance and certain Cairene spaces demand a more in depth investigation into the nature of this historical interconnection In this work the author examines the relationship between belly dance space and belly dancer in the Cairo landscape over the course of the city s history relying on a theoretical framework informed by Pierre Bourdieu s theory of practice Michel Foucault s concept of heterotopia and Mikhail Bakhtin s notion of the carnivalesque This analysis reveals the mutually constituting relationship between dance dancers and the Cairene landscape and explains why and how certain Cairo spaces have retained their centuries long historical associations with belly dance and its professional practitioners
