

DESCRIPTION

This section contains descriptive information concerning the machine and its components. This information supplements the instructions and information found in the Operation and Maintenance sections and is presented to give a better understanding of the baler and its successful operation.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

The baler is a conventional square baler producing a 14 x 18-inch bale in any length from 12 to 52 inches. It can be purchased with either a twine tie or a wire tie mechanism. It is fully automatic and requires only one person, the tractor driver, to operate it. The baler uses continuous flow straight through feeding to move the windrow from the ground to the baling chamber with minimum disturbance to the crop. The following paragraphs describe the features and functions of the machine.

THE DRIVE TRAIN

The baler is powered by the tractor PTO system, requiring a 540 rpm PTO speed. The baler uses a three-U-joint drive shaft between the tractor and the baler. The tractor power is transmitted from the rear U-joint of the drive shaft to the overrunning clutch. The overrunning clutch, shown in figure 3, allows the baler flywheel to "freewheel" when the PTO is disengaged or the tractor engine speed is reduced. This allows the operator to change gears on the tractor without waiting for the baler flywheel to come to a complete stop. From the overrunning clutch, the power is transmitted through a slip clutch, the flywheel and a shear bolt. The shear bolt drives the gearbox, which operates the rest of the machine's mechanisms. A crank arm on the right side of the gearbox drives the plunger and sprockets and on the left side drives two roller drive chains, a No. 50 and No. 80 chain. The No. 80 chain drives the packer
