

HAWAII EARLY LEARNING PROFILE (HELP) ACTIVITY GUIDE

Introduction

The Hawaii Early Learning Profile (HELP) is a comprehensive assessment tool used to evaluate the development of young children in Hawaii. It is designed to be used by early childhood educators and other professionals who work with children from birth to five years of age.

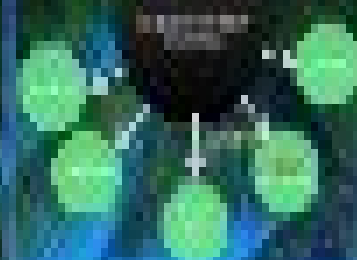

The HELP is a standardized assessment tool that is used to measure a child's development in various areas, including communication, motor skills, social interaction, and self-concept. It is a valuable tool for identifying children who may have developmental delays or disabilities and for planning appropriate interventions.

Developmental Areas and Domains

The HELP is organized into four main domains: Communication, Motor Skills, Social Interaction, and Self-Concept. Each domain is further divided into specific developmental areas. For example, the Communication domain includes areas such as receptive language, expressive language, and nonverbal communication. The Motor Skills domain includes areas such as fine motor skills, gross motor skills, and coordination. The Social Interaction domain includes areas such as social play, social interaction, and socialization. The Self-Concept domain includes areas such as self-awareness, self-regulation, and self-esteem.

The Assessment Process

The assessment process for the HELP involves a series of steps. First, the assessor must observe the child in a natural setting, such as a classroom or play area. Next, the assessor must administer the HELP tasks, which are designed to measure the child's development in the various domains. Finally, the assessor must score the results of the assessment and report them to the appropriate professionals.

Using the Results of the Assessment

The results of the HELP assessment can be used in a variety of ways. They can be used to identify children who may have developmental delays or disabilities and to plan appropriate interventions. They can also be used to monitor a child's progress over time and to evaluate the effectiveness of interventions. Finally, they can be used to provide information to parents and other professionals about a child's development.

Conclusion

The Hawaii Early Learning Profile (HELP) is a comprehensive assessment tool that is used to evaluate the development of young children in Hawaii. It is a valuable tool for identifying children who may have developmental delays or disabilities and for planning appropriate interventions. The results of the HELP assessment can be used in a variety of ways, including to identify children who may have developmental delays or disabilities, to plan appropriate interventions, to monitor a child's progress over time, and to evaluate the effectiveness of interventions.

How the Assessment is Administered

The HELP is administered by a trained assessor who observes the child in a natural setting and administers the HELP tasks. The assessor must be trained in the use of the HELP and must have a minimum of a bachelor's degree in early childhood education or a related field. The assessment is typically administered in a classroom or play area, and the child is observed while they engage in various activities.
