Peterson, Martin R. West, 2003-11-18 The 2002 No Child Left Behind Act is the most important legislation in American education since the 1960s The law requires states to put into place a set of standards together with a comprehensive testing plan designed to ensure these standards are met Students at schools that fail to meet those standards may leave for other schools and schools not progressing adequately become subject to reorganization The significance of the law lies less with federal dollar contributions than with the direction it gives to federal state and local school spending It helps codify the movement toward common standards and school accountability Yet NCLB will not transform American schools overnight The first scholarly assessment of the new legislation No Child Left Behind breaks new ground in the ongoing debate over accountability Contributors examine the law's origins the political and social forces that gave it shape the potential issues that will surface with its implementation and finally the law's likely consequences for American education

Thirty Years of Learning Environments, 2018-11-01 This volume is a commemorative book celebrating the 30th Anniversary of the Special Interest Group SIG on Learning Environments of the American Educational Researchers Association It includes a historical perspective starting with the formation of the SIG in 1984 and the first program space at the AERA annual meeting in 1985 in Chicago This retrospective notes other landmarks in the development of the SIG such as the creation of the international journal Learning Environments Research The study of learning environments was first conceptualized around the need to develop perceptual and psychosocial measures for describing students individual or shared educational experiences e g feel of the class or classroom climate Over the ensuing decades the field expanded considerably from its early roots in science education to describe other phenomenon such as teacher student interpersonal relationships or applications in pre service teacher education and action research The book also describes several new areas of promise for the expanding field of learning environments research that in the future will include more diverse contexts and applications These will include new contexts but established research programs in areas such as information and communications technology and environmental education but also in emerging research contexts such as the physical classroom environment and links among learning environment contexts and students emotional health and well being Contributors are Perry den Brok Rosie Dhaliwhal Barry J Fraser Catherine Martin Dunlop David Henderson Melissa Loh Tim Mainhardt George Sirrakos Alisa Stanton Theo Wubbels and David B Zandvliet

Exploding the Castle Michael F. Young, Stephen T. Slota, 2017-07-01 Lacking a digital crystal ball we cannot predict the future of education or the precise instructional role games will have going forward Yet we can safely say that games will play some role in the future of K 12 and higher education and members of the games community will have to choose between being passive observers or active progressive contributors to the complex and often political process of weaving together pedagogy technology and culture This will involve agreeing that games or more specifically game mechanics and the engagement in joyful learning that they engender are not only critical for shaping online and classroom instruction but also the evolution of schooling as a whole Likewise it will involve a hard push beyond questions like Are video games good or bad for education and Are games better for all students than traditional face to face teaching to unpack how game experiences vary with individual learner goals as an interaction with the parameters of an educational environment. Simply put we need to form a cohesive compelling argument in support of the notion that games are entire learning ecologies in and of themselves. This edited volume is designed to anchor collective thinking with respect to the value added nature of games for learning and the complexities involved in player experience narrative context and environmental player interactions. As could be expected we are not interested in debates about gamification game violence individual game quality and other topics that have become standard fare in extant games literature. Instead we seek to emphasize issues of scalability the induction of player goal adoption affordances of game based instructional environments relationships between play and transfer and the value of games as part of an ecopsychological worldview. As long time contributors in a field that has made a habit of playing it safe pun intended we seek to bring the dialogue in a more nuanced and meaningful direction that will reach teachers researchers designers and players alike.
