

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and that they should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he spends more time with the 54th Massachusetts Infantry, he begins to see them as individuals and not just as a race. He becomes more sympathetic toward them and eventually comes to see them as equals.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The 54th Massachusetts Infantry was a regiment of African-American soldiers who fought in the American Civil War. The soldiers in the regiment came from different backgrounds and regions of the United States. Some of them were formerly enslaved, while others were free. The regiment was led by Colonel Robert Gould Shaw, a white man who believed in the equality of all people.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

White soldiers in the 54th Massachusetts Infantry had a variety of attitudes. Some of them were sympathetic toward the African-American soldiers, while others were not. The attitudes of the white soldiers changed over the course of the movie as they learned more about the African-American soldiers and their experiences.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less than whites, they were not allowed to hold the same positions as whites, and they were often treated with discrimination and prejudice.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it shows that he was willing to die for his principles. He believed that the African-American soldiers were just as brave and capable as the white soldiers, and he was willing to stand up for them.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings/oughts come over you left with?

The incident ended as I expected. I felt that the African-American soldiers were brave and capable, and I was proud of them. I also felt that the white soldiers were wrong to discriminate against them. I think that the movie did a good job of showing the struggles of the African-American soldiers during the Civil War.
