Kingdom Of The Ice Bear A Portrait Of The Arctic:

Kingdom of the Ice Bear ,1986 Kingdom of the Ice Bear Hugh Miles, Mike Salisbury, 1985 An account of two years filming to make a series of three television programs on the Arctic environment and its wildlife Illustrated by numerous colour photographs Kingdom of the Ice Bear ,1986 Kingdom of the Ice Bear Hugh Miles, Mike Salisbury, 1986 Lavishly illustrated text describes the ecology of the Arctic region and the sequence of seasonal events showing how flora fauna and man can survive the intense cold Marine Mammals ,1995 Wildlife Films Derek Bousé, 2011-11-29 If as many argue movies and television have become Western culture's premier storytelling media so too have they become for most members of society the primary source of encounters with the natural world particularly wild animals The television fare offered nightly by national and cable networks such as PBS and the Discovery Channel provides millions of viewers with their only experience of the wilderness and its inhabitants The very films that so many viewers take as accurate portrayals of wildlife however have evolved primarily as a form of entertainment following the established codes and conventions of narrative exposition The result has been not the representation of nature but its wholesale reconstruction and reconfiguration according to film and television conventions audience expectations and the demands of competition in the media marketplace Wildlife Films traces the genealogy of the nature film from its origins as the animal locomotion studies that mark the very beginnings of motion pictures themselves to the founding of the Animal Planet cable channel that boasts all animals all the time The narrative and thematic elements that unite wildlife films as a genre have their roots not in the documentary film tradition but in the older traditions of oral and written animal fables as reflections of human society Derek Bous contends that classic wildlife films often portray animal protagonists living in families modeled on an ideal of the human nuclear family and working in communities that resemble an ideal of bucolic human society In these stories presented as documentaries animals are motivated by human emotions and conduct relationships according to human customs This imposition of culturally satisfying narrative patterns upon the lives of animals has not only led to the misrepresentation of the natural world it has promoted the notion that our values our moral vision our models of society and family structure derive from nature rather than being cultural formations Outpost Dan Richards, 2019-04-04 There are still wild places out there on our crowded planet Through a series of personal journeys Dan Richards explores the appeal of far flung outposts in mountains tundra forests oceans and deserts Following a route from the Cairngorms of Scotland to the fire watch lookouts of Washington State from Iceland's Houses of Joy to the Utah desert frozen ghost towns in Svalbard to shrines in Japan Roald Dahl's writing hut to a lighthouse in the North Atlantic Richards explores landscapes which have inspired writers artists and musicians and asks why are we drawn to wilderness What can we do to protect them And what does the future hold for outposts on the edge The journal of wildlife management ,1989 Encyclopedia of World Geography: Canada/the Arctic ,2002 Each volume focuses on a specific geographic region covering its physical geography economics government
