of the environment and sustainability, it is not an uncontested truth or value. In the case of the UK, for example, it is not clear that the UK has a strong capacity, either in the business community or otherwise, to take on such a global role. It may simply be a reflection of the fact that the UK has a relatively small population and a relatively small economy compared to the rest of the world.

It is also worth noting that the UK has a long history of being a global leader in many areas, including science, technology, and the arts. This may be due to a combination of factors, including its long history of being a global power and its strong tradition of innovation and creativity.

Managing Issues

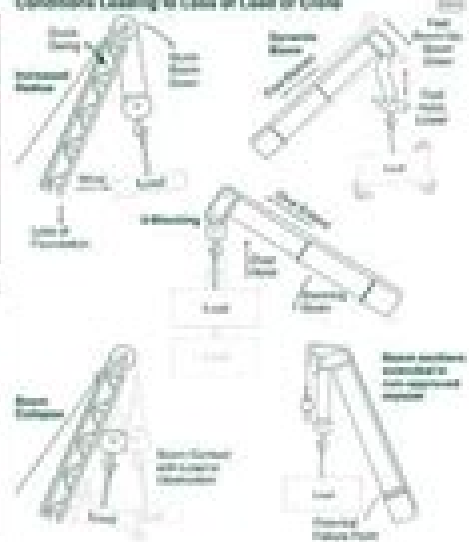

During the student thought-through planning process, the class identified the following issues that they thought it important to explore. The issues were then assigned to groups of students to research and report on. The issues were:

- How the forest is managed
- How the forest is used
- How the forest is protected
- How the forest is used for recreation
- How the forest is used for timber
- How the forest is used for wildlife
- How the forest is used for water
- How the forest is used for energy
- How the forest is used for other purposes
