1 STUDYING POPULATIONS (pp. 284–285)

1. What do the living organisms that form a population have in common?

They are of the same species, and they live in a shared space.

2. Give two examples of a plant population and two examples of an animal population.

Answers will vary. Examples: the cactus trees in Las Vegas and the dolphins in the south Indian Ocean; the grassy meadows on Mount Kenya and the shrubs of the savanna in Botswana; the oysters in Chesapeake Bay.

3. How can knowing the size of a wolf population be useful?

Answers will vary. Examples: It can tell us whether the population is healthy or in trouble, which will affect other species in the same environment.

4. For each of the following examples, name the factor that changed the population size (e.g., births, deaths, immigration or emigration) and identify its effect.

a) Every spring, Canada geese return to the shores of Lake Thoreau.

b) During a logging operation, the noise from the forestry vehicles scared away the white-bellied deer in the vicinity.

c) In the spring, a female bear nurses her three cubs in her den.

d) Fish farmers stock a river with salmon fry.

The Illustrated Guide to the Mass Communication Research Project Patricia Swann, 2022-12-21 This book makes mass communication research projects more accessible to the new student researcher through a balance between an academically rigorous guide and an informal and humorous student-centered approach. The Illustrated Guide to the Mass Communication Research Project's unique visual approach brings to life concepts and tactics under discussion through vivid illustrations. The book follows the universal format of the academic research paper: abstract, introduction, literature review, methodology, hypotheses, research questions, quantitative and qualitative analysis, findings, discussion, and conclusion. It guides the reader through using key methods central to much of mass communication research: observation, interviews, focus groups, case studies, content analysis, surveys, experiments, and sampling. Each chapter contains examples of the segment under discussion.

using excerpted research studies that provide writing models for the student's own research report. Ideal for students in research-centered courses in mass media communication studies, marketing and public relations, whether at the undergraduate or graduate level, this text will continue to serve as a valuable resource into a future communications and marketing career. Online resources are provided to support the book examples of an in-depth interview guide, a focus group moderator guide, a content analysis coding form, observation field notes, and an experiment cover story templates for a personal SWOT analysis and an informed consent form, a research topic worksheet, a literature review matrix, and coding exercises.
