

One of the contents is the Timing Advance (TA) which is defined by the standards as "signal sent by the BTS to the MS which the MS uses to advance its timings of transmissions to the BTS so as to compensate for the propagation delay" [22]. In other words, it is a measure of how far an MS is from its serving cell, in case the BSC is sensing a TA which indicates an MS moving far away from the cell, the BSC might initiate a handover due to the distance between the BTS and the MS, even if both the signal level and the quality are within the acceptable range.

There are two very important measures in both uplink and downlink links carried within the measurement reports, one is the signal level and the other is the quality level.

The BTS measures the uplink signal and quality levels. It also estimates the distance to the MS and calculate the TA. On the other hand, the MS measures the downlink signal level of the serving cell, the downlink signal level of neighbor cells⁴, and the quality level of the downlink of the serving cell.

The quality measure is called RXQUAL (received signal quality) [6]. It is a discrete scale with values from 0 to 7, where 7 is the worst possible RXQUAL value. RXQUAL values are mapped from the bit error rate evaluated before channel decoding over a SACCH period (i.e. 480 ms). The mapping is done according to the specifications [23]. However, no method to calculate the BER is standardized [6]. Table 2.1 shows the mapping between BER and RXQUAL.

RXQUAL	BER (%)
	From	To
0	0	0.2
1	0.2	0.4
2	0.4	0.8
3	0.8	1.6
4	1.6	3.2
5	3.2	6.4
6	6.4	12.8
7	12.8	>12.8

Table 2.1 Mapping RXQUAL to BER

⁴ The number of neighbor cells the MS reports their signal level depends on how many neighbor cells have a received power level above a certain threshold, and whether a neighboring relation is defined in the system between the current serving cell and a particular cell.
