Growing Up Postmodern Ronald Strickland,2002-06-25 This collection takes its inspiration from Paul Goodman s Growing Up Absurd a landmark critique of American culture at the end of the 1950s Goodman called for a revival of social investment in urban planning public welfare workplace democracy free speech racial harmony sexual freedom popular culture and education to produce a society that could inspire young people and an adult society worth joining In postmodernity Goodman s enlightenment era vision of social progress has been judged obsolete For many postmodern critics subjectivity is formed and expressed not through social investment but through consumption the freedom to consume has replaced political empowerment But the power to consume is distributed very unevenly and even for the affluent it never fulfills the desire produced by the advertising industry The contributors to this volume focus on adverse social conditions that confront young people in postmodernity such as the relentless pressure to consume social disinvestment in education harsh responses to youth crime and the continuing climate of intolerance that falls heavily on the young In essays on education youth crime counseling protest movements fiction identity formation and popular culture the contributors look for moments of resistance to the subsumption of youth culture under the logic of global capitalism

Growing Up In A Pennsylvania Steel Town Edward Nebinger, 2012-10-01 The author was inspired to write these memoirs of the years he spent growing up in the Pennsylvania steel town of Bethlehem before the Second World War by the realization that they were a pivotal time in American history While Americans were struggling with the economic hardships of the Great Depression they never gave up and instead made the best of what they had Out of their triumph over hardship grew the generation that fought and won the Second World War The society and culture exemplified by the Pennsylvania steel towns has now vanished but it is hard not to think that while we have gained much as a society we have also lost far too many things worthy of preservation One of these was the great Bethlehem Steel plant itself the ruins of which stretch for miles along the Lehigh River Dominating the ruins are the ghostly remains of the five great blast furnaces preserved to remind people of the greatness that was once Bethlehem Steel and the community that lived in its shadows
