Tomar,2010 The present book discusses how digital revolution can be used effectively for development Every sector is involved governments academia small and large businesses large corporations inter governmental organizations and non profits and non governmental organizations ICTs can be a useful tool to support existing and new development activities The book highlights the range of electronic technologies and techniques which are used to manage information and knowledge it includes the old ICTs of raido television and telephone and the new ICTs of computers satellite and wireless technology and the internet Spread in twenty five chapters the book combines conceptual framework with practical guidance explaining the different ICTs It focuses on disseminating the theoretical and the practical knowledge about the old and new ICTs and using the specialized knowledge for development The book aims to highlight the role of ICTs to empower people with skills related to media technology journalism and an ability to make decisions regarding convergence of ICTs enabling them to improve their living standards and quality of life Useful for the students of Communication and Extension Journalism Mass Media Home Science Social Work etc Information, Communication, and Space Technology Mohammad Razani,2017-12-19 Many books have covered the rapidly evolving fields of information and communication technology ICT and space technology separately However no single book has ever focused on how the integration of these two areas is creating a stronger platform for various scientific advancements including some research work that cannot be performed on Earth To fill the void

Information Communication and Space Technology provides a novel illustration of that connection. Dividing content into sections that cover ICT existing and future space technologies and satellites, the author demonstrates the individual and combined power of each of these parts of the overall system. He explores how the combination of concepts from each of these interrelated fields is creating massive potential for broader advances in areas such as robotics, communications, navigation, agriculture, health care, and nanotechnology. The book introduces particular potential innovations including rocket-less spacecraft launches and development of a global system to balance energy distribution by using satellites that would collect solar energy and transmit it via microwave beams to different locations around the world. Equally useful to students and professionals, this work is a culmination of the domestic and international experience that the author has acquired throughout more than three decades as an instructor and researcher. Emphasizing the strong need to incorporate ICT and space technology into the general university curriculum, the book starts with basic explanations of key concepts and theories, building toward more concrete application-oriented examples that reveal the importance and impact of new technologies. This includes coverage of how satellites transfer voice, video, and other data across continents, as well as techniques used to obtain very high resolution images from space for use in agricultural and environmental sciences. This timely work employs a logical, practically structured approach that will help readers to better understand existing and emerging ICT and space technologies, including the most recent developments and achievements in the field.

Information Communication Technologies: Concepts, Methodologies, Tools and Applications Craig Van Slyke, Mehdi Khosrow-Pour, 2008-04

Information Communication Technology and Poverty Alleviation Jack J. Barry, 2018-07-24. Despite global economic disparities, recent years have seen rapid technological changes in developing countries, as it is now common to see people across all levels of society with smartphones in their hands and computers in their homes. However, does access to Information Communication Technologies (ICTs) actually improve the day-to-day lives of low-income citizens? This book argues that access to the internet can help alleviate poverty, improve development outcomes, and is now vital for realizing many human rights. This book posits that good governance is essential to the realization of inclusive pro-poor development goals and puts forward policy recommendations that aim to mitigate the complex digital divide by employing governance as the primary actor. In making his argument, the author provides a quantitative analysis of developing countries conjoined with a targeted in-depth study of Mexico. This mixed-method approach provides an intriguing case for how improvements in the quality of governance impact both ICT penetration and poverty alleviation. Overall, the book challenges the neoliberal deterministic perspective that the open market will solve technology diffusion and argues instead that good governance is the lynchpin that creates conducive conditions for ICTs to make an impact on poverty alleviation. In fact, the digital divide should not be considered binary; rather, it is a multifaceted problem where income, education, and language all need to be considered to address it effectively. This book will be useful for researchers, students of development communication.

technologies and comparative politics as well as for development practitioners and policy makers with an interest in how modern technology is impacting the poor in the developing world      Information and Communication Technologies in Organizations and Society Francesca Ricciardi, Antoine Harfouche, 2016-02-02 This book presents a collection of original research papers focusing on emerging issues regarding the role of information and communication technologies in organizations inter organizational systems and society It adopts an inter disciplinary approach allowing for the integration of contributions from various disciplines such as information systems organizational studies marketing accounting and social sciences This book offers valuable insights not only for scholars but also for practitioners managers and policy makers The book is a compilation of the best research papers originally double blind peer reviewed contributions presented at the ICTO 2015 conference held in Paris
