Studies in Language, 1979

'Essenced to Language' Nayef Al-Joulan, 2007 Rosenberg was more than just a war poet A general failure to take this into consideration has contributed to the belated recognition of the distinctions of his work A working class London Jew he schooled himself long before the Great War to respond to issues of class culture art and poetry a combination of dependency and self sufficiency which sustains his mature work and which gave him a sense of himself as an Anglo Jewish poet To illuminate Rosenberg Nayef Al Joulan considers the conditions of the Jewish community in the East End of London at the turn of the century and examines the writer's attitudes to the Zionism in vogue. He also investigates striking echoes of Freudian psychology in Rosenberg's work. Tracing Rosenberg's working class literary heritage, Al Joulani underlines a modern Jewish insight that has parallels with Marx and Freud and therefore uncovers the role class and race played in the critical marginalising of Rosenberg. The book concludes by examining Rosenberg's cognitive ekphrasis, his idea of language as a vehicle for mental essence, a perception rooted into the painter's mind.

Reframing Translators, Translators as Reframers Dominique Faria, Marta Pacheco Pinto, Joana Moura, 2022-07-29 This collection explores the notion of reframing as a framework for better understanding the multi-agent and multi-level nature of the translation process, generating new conversations in current debates on translational agency, authority and power. The volume puts forward reframing as an alternative metaphor to traditional conceptualizations and descriptions of translation, which often position the process in such terms as transformation, reproduction, transposition and transfer. Chapters in the book reflect on the translator figure as a central agent in actively moving a translated text to a new context and the translation process as shaped by different forces and subjectivities when translational agency comes into play. The book brings together cross-disciplinary perspectives for viewing translation through the lens of agents, drawing on a wide range of examples across geographic settings, historical eras and language pairs. The volume integrates analyses from the translated texts themselves as well as their paratexts to offer unique insights into the different layers of mediation in translation and the new frame(s) created for those texts. This book will be of interest to scholars in translation studies, comparative studies, reception studies and cultural studies.
