Transport Development in Asian Megacities Shigeru

Morichi, Surya Raj Acharya, 2012-07-27 The rapid growth of the Asian urban population concentrates on a few large cities turning them into giant megacities Despite new theoretical insights into the benefits of megacities the emerging Asia is facing a daunting challenge concerning the management of infrastructure and services in their megacities The deteriorating urban mobility is the most difficult challenge with respect to the sharp increase in vehicle numbers and to inadequate and poorly managed road infrastructure Public transport a sustainable mode of mobility is subjected to a vicious cycle of poor service decreasing ridership and lower investment Despite various policy initiatives the situation has not improved The scale and growth pattern of Asian megacities have distinctive features which generate a unique set of challenges and opportunities. New perspectives are needed to effectively address the transportation problems making the best use of available opportunities. This book, which is a result of an international collaborative research, addresses these challenges by providing insightful analysis and novel viewpoints.

Air Transport and Regional Development Case Studies Anne Graham, Nicole Adler, Hans-Martin Niemeier, Ofelia Betancor, António Pais Antunes, Volodymyr Bilotkach, Enrique J. Calderón, Gianmaria Martini, 2020-12-28. This book is one of three inter-connected books related to a four-year European Cooperation in Science and Technology COST Action established in 2015. The Action called Air Transport and Regional Development ATARD aimed to promote a better understanding of how the air transport-related problems of core regions and remote regions should be addressed in order to enhance both economic competitiveness and social cohesion in Europe. This book focuses on case studies in Europe related to air transport and regional development. It is divided into four geographical regions after a general chapter that compares regional air transport connectivity between remote and central areas in Europe. The first region is Northern and Western Northern Europe; case studies related specifically to Norway, Finland, the United Kingdom, and Ireland. The second is Central and Eastern Europe; Bulgaria, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Poland. The third is Central Western Europe; Belgium and Switzerland. And finally, the fourth is Southern Europe; Portugal, Spain, and Italy. There is no other single source publication that currently covers this topic area in such a comprehensive manner by considering so many countries. The book aims at becoming a major reference on the topic, drawing from experienced researchers in the field, covering the diverse experience and knowledge of the members of the COST Action. The book will appeal to academics, practitioners, and policymakers who have a particular interest in acquiring detailed comparative knowledge and understanding of air transport and regional development in many different European countries. Together with the other two books, Air Transport and Regional Development Methodologies and Air Transport and Regional Development Policies, it fills a much-needed gap in the literature.

ITF Round Tables Major Transport Infrastructure Projects and Economic Development International Transport Forum, 2014-12-24. This report discusses the state of the art in understanding the economic effects of major transport infrastructure projects. It examines the limits of socio-economic cost-benefit analysis (CBA) and reviews the development of approaches to assessing the benefits of investment in large projects.

Handbook on Transport and Land Use João de Abreu e Silva, Veronique Van Acker, Kristina M. Currans, Robert J. Schneider, 2023-06-28. Synthesizing current understandings on the relationship between transport and land use, this timely Handbook proposes an agenda for research and practice that leads toward more human-centered communities within an increasingly urbanized world facing rapid technological change. Leading scholars reframe and expand conventional transport policy holistically with concepts grounded in behavioral, economic, psychological, and sociological theories in this fundamental reference work. Chapters explore the role of institutional policies and informal cultural contexts in influencing transport and land use systems before examining the impacts of transportation and land use decisions across multiple areas including equity public health climate environment and lifestyle preferences The Handbook concludes by emphasizing pathways for human centered development planning and policy in an age of rapid innovation in new mobility technologies Outlining the fundamental emerging and developing theories methods models and policies across the fields of transportation and land use this interdisciplinary Handbook will be invaluable to students and scholars of urban planning and transport studies Setting an agenda for future research and policy initiatives it will also prove a useful resource to policymakers and practitioners working within transport and land use planning
