

Marketing Proposal Template

Whether you are pitching a branding, marketing, or advertising campaign, you need to create a proposal that explains how you will help your client promote and expand their business. You can adapt this template to suit just about any marketing project.

HubSpot Tip: Every proposal should be client-centered, so be sure to update this template to meet the specific needs of your customer.

Our Company and Team

Whether you are submitting this proposal to a long-time or brand new client, it is always a good idea to provide a brief introduction to your company and team. No more than a paragraph is needed. Include key information like when and by whom your marketing firm was founded, what your major strengths are, and any similar work that you have completed in the past.

Our Services

Provide a summary of the marketing, branding, and/or advertising work that your company does. Be broad. Include all of the kinds of services you offer, even ones that you might not be proposing to this client at this time. You can organize them in a bulleted list like the one below.

- Service 1
- Service 2
- Service 3

The Proposed Team

In this section, you should provide information on the relevant skills and experience of your proposed team members. Provide brief profiles of each of the staff who will work on this project, indicating their name, title, role on the project, special skills, relevant qualifications, and education. You can also mention successes on similar work in the past. Consider organizing this section with bullets, as shown below.

- Team Member 1, Title – Profile
- Team Member 2, Title – Profile
- Team Member 3, Title – Profile

HubSpot Tip: You can include professional headshots for each of your team members to personalize your proposal. Be sure that the look of the photographs is uniform across the team members and matches the overall design of the proposal.
