How We Bury Our Dead:

We Bury Our Dead Well Rachael Webb,2022-11-28 We Bury Our Dead Well By Rachael Webb The very element that binds us to humanity is being used to divide us Our emotions do not make us unique they make us human It is how you got there and what you do once you leave the particular events of your life this is where your uniqueness comes from Let s start loving our living with a cup of grace and the emotional bonds of humanity Follow two public servants who leave it all on the field to help others only to be left destitute and in peril due to the actions of others Discover how important a support network is as you embrace individuals in a parallel world and discover how we as individuals help to kill each other every day in our actions and our words In a world where materialist items are valued over human life let s come back to humanity and start taking care of each other Validation is your only requirement It is not for you to judge good or bad Let s see each other for the possibility not the trials that we are currently facing alone How We Bury Our Dead, and How the Dead Should be Buried Samuel Phillips DAY,1879 Notices on the outlasting war sites Belgium. Erosion Gina Caison, 2024-10-04 In Erosion Gina Caison traces how American authors and photographers have grappled with soil erosion as a material reality that shapes narratives of identity belonging and environment Examining canonical American texts and photography including John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath Octavia Butler's Parable series John Audubon's Louisiana writings and Dorothea Lange's Migrant Mother Caison shows how concerns over erosion reveal anxieties of disappearance that are based in the legacies of settler colonialism Soil loss not only occupies a complex metaphorical place in the narrative of American identity it becomes central to preserving the white settler colonial state through Indigenous dispossession and erasure At the same time Caison examines how Indigenous texts and art such as Lynn Riggs's play Green Grow the Lilacs Karenne Wood's poetry and Monique Verdin's photography challenge colonial narratives of the continent by outlining the material stakes of soil loss for their own communities From California to Oklahoma to North Carolina's Outer Banks Caison ultimately demonstrates that concerns over erosion reverberate into issues of climate change land ownership Indigenous sovereignty race and cultural and national identity
