

Q&A for A People's History of the United States by Howard Zinn (Open Source)

Chapter 1:

1.Howard Zinn's main purpose in writing A People's History of the United States is to tell the story of our country through the perspective of the people. More specifically, the original inhabitants, minorities, and immigrants. He also wants to expose what has happened in the past that is not typically mentioned in our mainstream books. Zinn wants however to not just criticize but to also mention the good things our leaders have done.

2.Howard Zinn's thesis for pages one through eleven is that Christopher Columbus has been given a false image of being a heroic, peaceful person who discovered the Americas by history books. In reality, Columbus gave false reports to the Spanish crown and overruled what more existed... Howard Zinn argues that the Indians are indeed, not inferior by mentioning all of the progress they have made and their actions while being completely isolated. His support being their journey over the freezing tundra land more 21,000 years ago, responding to the different environments with their respective soil and climate, the development of hundreds of different cultures, a productive and innovative agricultural system, and their architecture.

Chapter 2:

1.According to Howard Zinn, the root cause of racism in the United States was slavery. This is because slavery separated people based on their color of their skin and segregated them. People who were white were not slaves and were treated normally while people who were black were treated like sub-human and discriminated, over time, this led to negative attitudes towards blacks.

2.The reason why Africans were considered better slaves than Native Americans was because the Indians exterminated the colonists, were defiant, tough, and were on their own land. Africans on the other hand, were already considered slaves by Europeans and thought to be helpless when captured because they were completely separated from their
