Leadership and Change in Sustainable Regional Development Markku Sotarauta, Ina Horlings, Joyce Little, 2012-09-10 This book shows first of all that leadership plays a crucial role in reinventing regions and branching out from an old path to something new in order to create more balanced and sustainable regional development Second it maintains that leadership is not a solo but a multi agent and level activity and that it needs to be discussed and studied as such Third as the book argues leadership is shaped differently in various institutional and cultural contexts and on different scales This book explores the ways leadership plays out in regional development context contributing to economically socially and ecologically balanced sustainable future Leadership and Change in Sustainable Regional Development Markku Sotarauta, Ina Horlings, Joyce Little, 2012 This book shows first of all that leadership plays a crucial role in reinventing regions and branching out from an old path to something new in order to create more balanced and sustainable regional development Second it maintains that leadership is not a solo but a multi agent and level activity and that it needs to be discussed and studied as such Third as the book argues leadership is shaped differently in various institutional and cultural contexts and on different scales This book explores the ways leadership plays out in regional development context contributing to economically socially and ecologically balanced sustainable future Regional Cities and City Regions in Rural Australia Peter John Smailes, Trevor Louis Charles Griffin, Neil Michael Argent, 2018-07-16 The book examines the extent to which the sustained population growth of Australia's heartland regional centres has come at the expense of demographic decline in their own hinterlands and ultimately of their entire regions It presents a longitudinal study over the period 1947-2011 of the extensive functional regions centred on six rapidly growing non metropolitan cities in south eastern Australia emphasising rapid change since 1981 The selected cities are dominantly service centres in either inland or remote coastal agricultural settings The book shows how intensified age specific migration and structural ageing arising from macro economic reforms in the 1980s fundamentally changed the economic and demographic landscapes of the case study regions It traces the demographic consequences of the change from a relative balance between central city minor urban centres and dispersed rural population within each functional region in 1947 to one of extreme central city dominance by 2011 and examines the long term implications of these changes for regional policy The book constitutes the first in depth longitudinal study over the entire post WWII period of a varied group of Australian regional cities and their hinterlands defined in terms of functional regions It employs a novel set of indices which combine numerical and visual expression to measure the structural ageing process Handbook on City and Regional Leadership Markku Sotarauta, 2021-02-26 In this timely Handbook people emerge at the centre of city and regional development debates from the perspective of leadership It explores individuals and communities not only as units that underpin aggregate measures or elements within systems but as deliberative actors with ambitions desires strategies and objectives Regional Worlds: Advancing the Geography of

Regions Martin Jones, Anssi Paasi, 2017-10-02 A key concern in the debate and empirical research on the geography of regions is the evolution of the conceptualizations and practical uses of the idea of region. This idea prioritises both the intellectual and the practical development of regional studies. This book drives the discussion further. It stresses the complex forms of agency/advocacy involved in the production and reproduction of regional spaces and space of regionalism as well as the importance of geohistory and context. The book moves beyond the territorial relational divide that has characterized debates on regions and regional borders since the 1990s. The contributors answer key questions from different conceptual and concrete contextual angles and to motivate readers to reflect on the perpetual significance of regional concepts and how they are mobilized by various actors to maintain or transform the contested spatialities of societal power relations. This book was based on a special issue of Regional Studies.

Leadership and the City Markku Sotarauta, 2015-11-06 The 21st century has been dominated by an almost compulsive race to find new pathways for city development. As cities seek to regenerate via the knowledge-based economy, now more than ever, dynamic leadership is required in order to navigate new and complex challenges while building community. This book is about generative leadership in knowledge city development. Leadership and the City is rooted in a conviction that the leadership in a city is crucial in order for it to adjust strategically to major transformations and thus secure a good future for its inhabitants. The book opens a fresh view of leadership by focusing on generative leaders and their modes of leading instead of spatial categorisations, governance structures and/or policy contents and processes. It investigates generative leadership by elaborating the modes of leadership, power and strategies in influence networks. The key points are highlighted with several empirical cases. These include Akron and Rochester USA, Munich, Germany, Leeds, UK, Barcelona, Spain as well as Helsinki, Tampere and Seinäjoki, Finland. This book will be of interest to researchers and practitioners concerned with Leadership, Urban Studies and Strategic Management.

Innovation, Regional Development and the Life Sciences Kean Birch, 2016-10-14 The life sciences is an industrial sector that covers the development of biological products and the use of biological processes in the production of goods, services and energy. This sector is frequently presented as a major opportunity for policy makers to upgrade and renew regional economies, leading to social and economic development through support for high-tech innovation. Innovation, Regional Development and the Life Sciences analyses where innovation happens in the life sciences, why it happens in those places and what this means for regional development policies and strategies. Focusing on the UK and Europe, its arguments are relevant to a variety of countries and regions pursuing high-tech innovation and development policies. The book's theoretical approach incorporates diverse geographies, e.g. global, national and regional, and political/economic forces, e.g. discourses, governance and finance, in order to understand where innovation happens in the life sciences, where and how value circulates in the life sciences and who captures the value produced in life sciences innovation. This book will be of interest to researchers, students and policy makers dealing with regional/local economic development.

Code and the City Rob Kitchin, Sung-Yueh Perng, 2016-04-20

Software has become essential to the functioning of cities. It is deeply embedded into the systems and infrastructure of the built environment and is entrenched in the management and governance of urban societies. Software-enabled technologies and services enhance the ways in which we understand and plan cities. It even has an effect on how we manage urban services and utilities. Code and the City explores the extent and depth of the ways in which software mediates how people work, consume, communication, travel, and play. The reach of these systems is set to become even more pervasive through efforts to create smart cities, cities that employ ICTs to underpin and drive their economy and governance. Yet despite the roll out of software-enabled systems across all aspects of city life, the relationship between code and the city has barely been explored from a critical social science perspective. This collection of essays seeks to fill that gap and offers an interdisciplinary examination of the relationship between software and contemporary urbanism. This book will be of interest to those researching or studying smart cities and urban infrastructure.

Evolutionary Economic Geography Dieter Kogler, 2017-10-02. Economic geographers increasingly consider the significance of history in shaping the contemporary socio-economic landscape and increasingly believe that experiences and competencies acquired over time by individuals and entities in particular localities to a large degree determine present configurations as well as future regional trajectories. Attempts to trace, understand, and investigate the pathways from past to present have given rise to the thriving and exciting sub-field of Evolutionary Economic Geography (EEG). EEG highlights the important factors that initiate, inhibit, or consolidate the contextual settings and relationships in which regions and their respective agents, which comprise and shape economic activity and social reproduction, change over time. It has at its core the production and destruction of novelty in space and the links between innovation and regional economic fortunes. The creation of knowledge, its movement, and recombination within different regional ensembles of economic agents and institutions plays a critical role in the evolution of the space economy. EEG provides a framework to disentangle the complexity of technological change and regional economic development based on a variety of theoretical and methodological approaches. In only a short time, EEG has established itself as a promising and rapidly evolving research framework with its focus on the driving forces of regional development across various scales and its attempt to translate findings into public policy. This book advances the theoretical foundations of EEG and demonstrates how EEG utilises and operationalises conceptual frameworks, both established and new. Contributions also point to future research avenues and extensions of EEG, attempting to build stronger ties between theory, empirical evidence, and relevance to policy. This book was originally published as a special issue of Regional Studies.

Transformation of Resource Towns and Peripheries Greg Halseth, 2016-07-01. Most developed economies, including single industry and resource-dependent rural or small town regions, are transforming rapidly as a result of social, political, and economic change. Collectively, they face a number of challenges as well as new opportunities. This international collaboration describes a critical political economy framework that will be useful for understanding these transitions. Transformation of Resource Towns and Peripheries describes the multi faceted process of transition and change in resource dependent rural and small town regions since the end of the Second World War The book incorporates international case studies from Australia Canada Finland and New Zealand with the express purpose of highlighting similarities and differences in patterns and practices in each country Chapters explore three main themes how corporate ties and trade linkages are changing and impacting rural communities and regions how resource industry employment is changing in these small communities and how local community capacity and leadership are working to mitigate challenges and take advantage of new opportunities This book will be of interest to students of regional studies geography and rural and industrial sociology It will also have a strong appeal to policy makers and local regional development practitioners

Shrinking Cities Harry W. Richardson, Chang Woon Nam, 2014-03-14 This book examines a rapidly emerging new topic in urban settlement patterns the role of shrinking cities Much coverage is given to declining fertility rates ageing populations and economic restructuring as the factors behind shrinking cities but there is also reference to resource depletion the demise of single company towns and the micro location of environmental hazards The contributions show that shrinkage can occur at any scale from neighbourhood to macro region and they consider whether shrinkage of metropolitan areas as a whole may be a future trend Also addressed in this volume is the question of whether urban shrinkage policies are necessary or effective The book comprises four parts world or regional issues with reference to the European Union and Latin America national case studies the United States India China Korea Taiwan Germany Romania and Estonia city case studies Detroit Buffalo Cleveland Naples Belfast and Halle and broad issues such as the environmental consequences of shrinking cities This book will be of interest to scholars and practitioners working in the fields of urban studies economic geography and public policy

Technology and the City Tan Yigitcanlar, 2016-04-28 The interplay between smart urban technologies and city development is a relatively uncharted territory Technology and the City aims to fill that gap exploring the growing importance of smart technologies and systems in contemporary cities and providing an in depth understanding of both theoretical and practical aspects of smart urban technology adoption and its implications for our cities Beginning with an elaboration of the historical significance of technologies in economic growth social progress and urban development Yigitcanlar introduces the most prominent smart urban information technologies The book showcases significant smart city practices from across the globe that uses smart urban technologies and systems most effectively It explores the role of these technologies and asks how they can be adopted into the planning development and management processes of cities for sustainable urban futures This pioneering volume contributes to the conceptualisation and practice of smart technology and system adoption in our cities by disseminating both conceptual and empirical research findings with real world best practice applications With a multidisciplinary approach to themes of technology and urban development this book is a key reference source for scholars practitioners consultants city officials policymakers and urban technology enthusiasts

Making 21st Century Knowledge Complexes Julie Miao, Paul Benneworth, Nicholas A.

Phelps, 2015-05-15 The world has changed profoundly since the publication of the influential book Technopoles of the World. As policy makers and practitioners attempt to harness science technology and innovation to create dynamic and vibrant cities many wonder how relevant Manuel Castells and Peter Hall's messages are today. Twenty years later this book returns to their concepts and practices to update their message for the 21st century. Making 21st Century Knowledge Complexes: Technopoles of the World Revisited argues that the contemporary technopole concept encompasses three new dimensions. Firstly building synergy between partners is vital for the success of complexes. Secondly the correct governance arrangements are critical to balance competing interests inevitable in any science city project. Thirdly new evaluation mechanisms are indispensable in allowing policy makers to steer their long term benefits. Through twelve case study chapters and a detailed comparative analysis this book provides academics policy makers and practitioners with critical insights in understanding managing and promoting today's high technology urban complexes. Cities in Crisis Jörg Knieling, Frank Othengrafen, 2015-09-16 In recent years European societies and territories have witnessed the spatial impacts of a severe financial and socio economic crisis. This book builds on the current debate concerning how cities and urban regions and their citizens deal with the consequences of the recent financial and socio economic crisis. Cities in Crisis examines the political and administrative implications of austerity measures applied in southern European cities. These include cuts in local public spending and the processes of privatization of local public assets as well as issues related to the re scaling recentralization or decentralization of competencies. Attention is paid to the rise of new austerity regimes the question of their legitimacy and their spatial manifestations and in particular to the social consequences of austerity. The contributions to this book lay the foundation for recommendations on how to improve and consolidate qualified governance arrangements in order to better address rapid economic and social changes. Such recommendations are applicable to cities and urban regions both within and outside of Europe. It identifies possible approaches tools and partnerships to tackle the effects of the crisis and to prepare European cities for future challenges. Socio-Economic Segregation in European Capital Cities Tiit Tammaru, Szymon Marcińczak, Maarten van Ham, Sako Musterd, 2015-07-24 Growing inequalities in Europe are a major challenge threatening the sustainability of urban communities and the competitiveness of European cities. While the levels of socio economic segregation in European cities are still modest compared to some parts of the world the poor are increasingly concentrating spatially within capital cities across Europe. An overlooked area of research this book offers a systematic and representative account of the spatial dimension of rising inequalities in Europe. This book provides rigorous comparative evidence on socio economic segregation from 13 European cities. Cities include Amsterdam Athens Budapest London Milan Madrid Oslo Prague Riga Stockholm Tallinn Vienna and Vilnius. Comparing 2001 and 2011 this multi factor approach links segregation to four underlying universal structural factors social inequalities global city status welfare regimes and housing systems. Hypothetical segregation levels derived from those factors are compared to actual segregation levels in all cities. Each chapter provides an in depth and context sensitive discussion of the unique features shaping inequalities and segregation in the case study cities The main conclusion of the book is that the spatial gap between the poor and the rich is widening in capital cities across Europe which threatens to harm the social stability of European cities This book will be a key reference on increasing segregation and will provide valuable insights to students researchers and policy makers who are interested in the spatial dimension of social inequality in European cities Chapters 1 and 15 of this book are freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 3 0 license

The Age of Intelligent Cities Nicos Komninos, 2014-08-27 This book concludes a trilogy that began with Intelligent Cities Innovation Knowledge Systems and digital spaces Routledge 2002 and Intelligent Cities and Globalisation of Innovation Networks Routledge 2008 Together these books examine intelligent cities as environments of innovation and collaborative problem solving In this final book the focus is on planning strategy and governance of intelligent cities Divided into three parts each section elaborates upon complementary aspects of intelligent city strategy and planning Part I is about the drivers and architectures of the spatial intelligence of cities while Part II turns to planning processes and discusses top down and bottom up planning for intelligent cities Cities such as Amsterdam Manchester Stockholm and Helsinki are examples of cities that have used bottom up planning through the gradual implementation of successive initiatives for regeneration On the other hand Living PlanIT Neapolis in Cyprus and Saudi Arabia intelligent cities have started with the top down approach setting up urban operating systems and common central platforms Part III focuses on intelligent city strategies how cities should manage the drivers of spatial intelligence create smart environments mobilise communities and offer new solutions to address city problems Main findings of the book are related to a series of models which capture fundamental aspects of intelligent cities making and operation These models consider structure function planning strategies toward intelligent environments and a model of governance based on mobilisation of communities knowledge architectures and innovation cycles

Smaller Cities in a World of Competitiveness Peter Karl Kresl, Daniele Ietri, 2016-04-28 Much recent research in Urban Studies has concentrated on the notion of the global city but discussion has also covered a larger set of mega cities with populations in excess of 10 million This analysis has begged the question of the optimal size for a city is larger always better Smaller Cities explores the advantages and disadvantages of different sized cities trying to determine their place in the global economy and hierarchy How can smaller cities gain or retain their competitiveness in a world of large cities In a globalized world the nation has perhaps been diminished as an economic actor with fiscal shortcomings and political gridlock leaving cities more or less on their own in the task of enhancing their competitiveness and improving the economic lives of their residents This book argues that smaller cities of varying population can be important actors in competitiveness and aims to bring attention to an area often overlooked by researchers In short are Pittsburgh San Diego and Austin less competitive than London and Mumbai

This volume will be of interest to students researchers and city professionals who work in urban economy and urban geography

Approaches to Economic Geography Ray Hudson, 2016-06-10 The last four decades have seen major changes in the global economy with the collapse of communism and the spread of capitalism into parts of the world from which it had previously been excluded Beginning with a grounding in Marxian political economy this book explores a range of new ideas as to what economic geography can offer as it intersects with public policy and planning in the new globalised economy Approaches to Economic Geography draws together the formidable work of Ray Hudson into an authoritative collection offering a unique approach to the understanding of the changing geographies of the global economy With chapters covering subjects ranging from uneven development to social economy this volume explores how a range of perspectives including evolutionary and institutional approaches can further elucidate how such economies and their geographies are reproduced Subsequent chapters argue that greater attention must be given to the relationships between the economy and nature and that more consideration needs to be given to the growing significance of illegal activities in the economy The book will be of interest to students studying economic geography as well as researchers and policy makers that recognise the importance of the relationships between economy and geography as we move towards a sustainable future economy and society

Knowledge, Networks and Policy James Hopkins, 2015-05-08 The region has been used to understand and propose solutions to phenomena and problems outside the dominant spatial scale of the twentieth century the nation state Its influence can be seen in multiple social science disciplines and in public policy across the globe But how was this knowledge organised and how were its concepts transmuted into public policy This book charts the development of the academic field of Regional Studies and the application of its concepts in public policy through its learned society the Regional Studies Association In their modern form learned societies often play a complementary role to universities offering networks that operate in the spaces between and beyond universities connecting specialised academics and knowledge and making it possible for them to have impact outside the academy In contrast to the geographically tangible and popularly understood role of the university contemporary learned societies are nebulous networks that transcend barriers and whose contribution is difficult to discern However the production and dissemination of knowledge would be stunted were it not for the learned society connecting scholars through a network of publications and events This book traces the intellectual history of regional studies and regional science from the 1960s into the 2000s and the impact of the regional concept in public policy through the changing priorities of government in the UK and Europe By approaching the history through the Regional Studies Association it interrogates the role and function of the learned society model of organisation in contemporary academia and importance as a knowledge exchange vehicle for public policy influence

The Empirical and Institutional Dimensions of Smart Specialisation Philip McCann, Frank van Oort, John Goddard, 2016-11-25 Smart specialisation is the new policy approach to the development of regional innovation systems across Europe and it involves fostering innovative and entrepreneurial initiatives which are well tailored to the local context The different technologies skills profiles business activities institutions and sectors which reflect a region s economic strengths and potential are to be fostered and encouraged to diversify in ways which also exploit the region s linkages with broader global value chains Yet the ideas contained in the smart specialisation agenda have until now been primarily conceptual in nature The Empirical and Institutional Dimensions of Smart Specialisation draws together some of the leading regional economists and scientists in Europe to analyse how smart specialisation is working in practice This book investigates different dimensions of the agenda as it is developing across parts of Europe from both quantitative and qualitative perspectives The quantitative analysis examines the nature of the diversification processes undertaken by regions and the interplay between the chosen local regional development priorities and the wider global value chain impacts of these choices Meanwhile the qualitative analysis examines the institutional opportunities and challenges facing policy makers and the key elements most likely to provide the underpinnings of a workable set of policy settings The book is aimed both at academic researchers interested in the interface between economic geography and regional innovation systems as well as at policy makers making public policy decisions related to regional development at the local city regional or national levels
