The following table shows the results of the regression analysis. The dependent variable is the number of days of absence from work due to illness. The independent variables are age, sex, and years of education. The results show that age has a positive effect on the number of days of absence from work due to illness, while sex and years of education have no significant effect.

Abstract: This paper reports on a study of the effects of a computer-based training program on the performance of a group of 100 participants. The results show that the program had a significant positive effect on performance, with participants who used the program performing significantly better than those who did not. The study also found that the program had a significant positive effect on self-efficacy, with participants who used the program reporting significantly higher levels of self-efficacy than those who did not. The results suggest that the program is an effective tool for improving performance and self-efficacy in a group of participants.
