Immaterial Bodies Lisa Blackman, 2012-08-16 In this unique contribution Blackman focuses upon the affective capacities of bodies human and non human as well as addressing the challenges of the affective turn within the social sciences Fresh and convincing this book uncovers the paradoxes and tensions in work in affect studies by focusing on practices and experiences including voice hearing suggestion hypnosis telepathy the placebo effect rhythm and related phenomena Questioning the traditional idea of mind over matter as well as discussing the danger of setting up a false distinction between the two this book makes for an invaluable addition within cultural theory and the recent turn to affect In a powerful and engaging matter Blackman discusses the immaterial body across the neurosciences physiology media and cultural studies body studies artwork performance psychology and psychoanalysis Interdisciplinary in its core this book is a must for everyone seeking a dynamic and thought provoking analysis of culture and communication today The Making of the Good Person Nora Hämäläinen, 2023-04-03 This book provides a philosophical assessment of the idea of personhood advanced in popular self help literature It also traces within academic philosophy and philosophical scholarship a self help culture where the self is brought forth as an object of improvement and a key to meaning progress and profundity Unlike other academic treatments of the topic of self help this book is not primarily concerned with providing a critique of popular self help and self transformative practices Rather it is concerned with how they work to shape contemporary forms and ideals of moral personhood and are conducive to moral renegotiation and change The book consists of two parts with somewhat different argumentative strategies Part 1 consists of an overview and reassessment of popular self help literature and its sociological and journalistic critics written from a moral philosophical perspective Part 2 opens with discussion of the current attraction among a range of philosophers to self transformative themes The chapters assess the strand of self transformative philosophy found in the work of Ludwig Wittgenstein Michel Foucault Pierre Hadot Stanley Cavell and Iris Murdoch Finally the book concludes with a discussion of the theme of social change and moral renegotiation in contemporary societies which is a central but underestimated undercurrent in discussions on contemporary self transformative practices The book's dual perspective on both popular self help and self transformative currents in philosophy enables a cultural and moral philosophical analysis of contemporary ethical ideals of personhood as well as reflection on the literatures available for its development The Making of the Good Person will be of interest to scholars and advanced students working in moral philosophy history of philosophy psychology sociology and literary studies

An Analysis of Michel Foucault's Discipline and Punish Meghan Kallman, Rachele Dini, 2017-07-05 Michel Foucault is famous as one of the 20th century's most innovative thinkers and his work on Discipline and Punish was so original and offered models so useful to other scholars that the book now ranks among the most influential academic works ever published Foucault's aim is to trace the way in which incarceration was transformed between the seventeenth and twentieth centuries What started as a spectacle in which ritual punishments were focused on the prisoner's body eventually became a matter of the private disciplining of a delinquent soul Foucault's work is renowned for its original insights and Discipline and Punish contains several of his most compelling observations Much of the focus of the book is on making new connections between knowledge and power leading Foucault to sketch out a new interpretation of the relationship between voir savoir and pouvoir or to see is to know is to have power Foucault also dwells in fascinating detail on the true implications of a uniquely creative solution to the problems generated by incarcerating large numbers of criminals in a confined space Jeremy Bentham's panopticon a prison constructed around a central tower from which hidden guards might or might not be monitoring any given prisoner at any given time As Foucault points out the panopticon creates a prison in which inmates will discipline themselves for fear of punishment even when there are no guards present He goes on to apply this insight to the manner in which all of us behave in the outside world a world in which CCTV and speed cameras are explicitly designed to modify our behavior Foucault's highly original vision of prisons also ties them to broader structures of power allowing him to argue that all previous conceptions of prison are misleading even wrong For Foucault the ultimate purpose of incarceration is neither to punish inmates nor to reduce crime It is to produce delinquency as a way of enabling the state to control and of structure crime

Work, Subjectivity and Learning Stephen Billett, Tara Fenwick, Margaret Somerville, 2007-06-03 In recent years efforts to understand learning for and throughout working life have moved away from a focus on workplace training to concerns about learning as a component and outcome of engaging in work and work related activities and interactions This shift acknowledges a broader set of workplace factors that shape workers learning and development Yet equally it acknowledges that this learning through engagement is also necessarily shaped by the diverse ways that individuals elect to engage or participate in workplace activities Central here is the issue of individuals' subjectivity and how this is shaped by but shapes engagement in work and therefore what learning flows from their participation. It is in considering the relations among subjectivity, learning and work that it is possible to advance both the conceptual and procedural bases for understanding learning through and for working life. Moreover, the focus on relations among subjectivity, work and learning represents a point of convergence for diverse disciplinary traditions and practices that are provided by the book's contributors. In this way, the contributions represent something of the emerging perspectives that are elaborating the complex relations among subjectivity, work and learning and circumstances in which they are played out.

Psychosocial Studies Kath Woodward, 2015-02-26. There is expanding global interest in the relationship between the psychological and the social. The bringing together of affect, emotion and feeling with social, political and cultural forces offers a creative, innovative and rich set of ways of understanding what Charles Wright Mills called the links between personal troubles and public issues. This book is an introduction to psychosocial studies. Drawing on different approaches to the field, the book introduces the main theoretical influences on psychosocial studies and their development and impact through, for example, concepts such as the unconscious self and identity, affect, emotion and the cultural and social unconscious. It explores the theoretical frameworks of psychosocial studies and psychosocial research methods. The book offers examples of case studies which illustrate the diversity of psychosocial studies and what makes it distinctive. It asks what is social about the inner worlds of the psychological. What is psychological and psychic about social worlds and social life. This clear, accessible introduction will be of interest to students and researchers across the social sciences and humanities, in particular in sociology, psychology, cultural geography, social policy and politics and cultural studies.

Human Rights Law and Personal Identity Jill Marshall, 2014-06-20. This book explores the role human rights law plays in the formation and protection of our personal identities. Drawing from a range of disciplines, Jill Marshall examines how human rights law includes and excludes specific types of identity which feed into moral norms of human freedom and human dignity and their translation into legal rights. The book takes on a three-part structure. Part I traces the definition of identity and follows the evolution of and protects a right to personal identity and personality within human rights law. It specifically examines the development of a right to personal identity as property, the intersubjective nature of identity and the intercession of power and inequality. Part II evaluates past and contemporary attempts to describe the core of personal identity, including theories concerning the soul, the rational mind and the growing influence of neuroscience and genetics in explaining what it means to be human. It also explores the interrelation and conflict between universal principles and culturally specific rights. Part III focuses on issues and case law that can be interpreted as allowing self-determination. Marshall argues that while in an age of individual identity people are increasingly obliged to live in conformed ways, pushing out identities that do not fit with what is acceptable. Drawing on feminist theory, the book concludes by arguing how human rights law would be better interpreted as a force to enable respect for human dignity and freedom, interpreted as empowerment and self-determination whilst acknowledging our inter subjective identities In drawing on socio legal philosophical biological and feminist outlooks this book is truly interdisciplinary and will be of great interest and use to scholars and students of human rights law legal and social theory gender and cultural studies
