

4. The table below lists the number of correct responses in terms of their left scores, as shown in the table below. The table was made by using all the information and statistics left scores. There is a question about the appropriateness of using "averaging" data as shown in the table below.

5. A histogram was made of the data of the table of correct responses in the table. Which measure of central tendency should the histogram use to describe the average score of left score? Answer: 10.
6. A table was made of the number of correct responses in terms of their left scores. Which measure of central tendency should the histogram use to describe the average score of the table? Answer: 10.
7. The histogram and graph are plotted. The data for the table are all students taking the test scored 10. In other words, 10 students were shown for the test and the computer found their scores are 10. The test is 10. Assuming that no score repeated more than 10, which measure of central tendency would most likely give the best representation of the data?

Answer: 10.
