

Viruses and Bacteria

1. Explain what a virus is and whether it is a living organism or not.

- Virus: a nonliving microscopic parasite
  - Why nonliving? → can't replicate on their own (need a host), no metabolism or respiration or growth
  - May have come from renegade genes, or really reduced prokaryotes
  - Extremely abundant
    - 10 million/mL, 94% of all genetic material in the ocean
    - But most aren't designed to attach to humans, just bacteria
- Virus structure:

- Capsid: protein membrane
- DNA or RNA inside
- Virus replication
  - Attaches onto a host with specific proteins (looks for receptor proteins on the host cell)
    - Cell has to naturally transfer different products through its cell membrane
    - Virus hijacks these specific receptors
    - Different forms of attachment: some target bacteria, some target other cells
  - After attaching, begins replication (3 ways)
    - Injects DNA or RNA into the host cell
    - Endocytosis: bacteria engulfs the attached virus, brings it into the cytoplasm
    - Puncture: virus punctures the host cell membrane, moves in
- Virus reproduction after entering the cell (2 processes)
  - Lytic cycle
    - Virus DNA/RNA is replicated inside the cell after injection
    - Lysis: the DNA bursts out of the cell, is released
