L. Larson, 2015-01-23 In 1931 five individuals who met by chance in Glenwood Minnesota brought down a well known mobster running a host of illegal businesses at a nearby secluded lake resort Their efforts were kept secret to protect them from mob retribution Unknown at the time was that a sixth person was affected by the aftermath of the police raid Henry Hanson a local town leader had fled to Charleston South Carolina and assumed a new identity to keep himself safe Over the years while dodging discovery by the mob Hanson builds a hotel empire under the alias Henry Granville As retirement nears in 1960 however he has two concerns In case his shadowy past is ever revealed he wants a written account of his life to defend himself and the reputation of his enterprise Secondly he must choose his successor someone who would protect the image of the corporation For the scribe he selects a young Minnesota journalist Matt Lawton just four years out of college and the son of two of the original five from that weekend back in 1931 Together Lawton and Granville craft the older mans life story In this second book of the Minnesota Lake series Granville relates his early years as a leader of a lakeside community while being the de facto middleman dealing with a gangster dominated lake resort In doing so he must avert his past life from causing the ruin of his current one Confederate Veteran ,1894 The Golden Argosy ,1886 The Christian Work ,1915 Black for a Day Alisha Gaines,2017-03-27 In 1948 journalist Ray Sprigle traded his whiteness to live as a black man for four weeks A little over a decade later John Howard Griffin famously became black as well traveling the American South in search of a certain kind of racial understanding Contemporary history is littered with the surprisingly complex stories of white people passing as black and here Alisha Gaines constructs a unique genealogy of empathetic racial impersonation white liberals walking in the fantasy of black skin under the alibi of cross racial empathy At the end of their experiments in blackness Gaines argues these debatably well meaning white impersonators arrived at little more than false consciousness Complicating the histories of black to white passing and blackface minstrelsy Gaines uses an interdisciplinary approach rooted in literary studies race theory and cultural studies to reveal these sometimes maddening and often absurd experiments of racial impersonation By examining this history of modern racial impersonation Gaines shows that there was and still is a faulty cultural logic that places enormous faith in the idea that empathy is all that white Americans need to make a significant difference in how to racially navigate our society The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1856 Portland Transcript ,1854 Echoes from a Distant Frontier Corinna Brown Aldrich, Ellen Brown Anderson,2004 Echoes from a Distant Frontier is an edited annotated selection of the correspondence of Corinna and Ellen Brown two single women in their twenties who left a comfortable New England home in 1835 for the Florida frontier Within a month of their arrival the frontier erupted in Indian war The Browns witnessed the terror and carnage firsthand and their letters paint a vivid picture of the Second Seminole War 1835 1842 The Printing Machine ,1834 The Cultivator & Country Gentleman ,1874 Southern Cultivator ,1843
