Ersoy, 2017-07-05 While European eclecticism is examined as a critical and experimental moment in western art history little research has been conducted to provide an intellectual depth of field to the historicist pursuits of late Ottoman architects as they maneuvered through the nineteenth century's vast inventory of available styles and embarked on a revivalist Orientalist program they identified as the Ottoman Renaissance Ahmet A Ersoy's book examines the complex historicist discourse underlying this belated renaissance through a close reading of a text conceived as the movement's canonizing manifesto the Usul-i Mîmari-i Osmani The Fundamentals of Ottoman Architecture Istanbul 1873 In its translocal cross disciplinary scope Ersoy's work explores the creative ways in which the Ottoman authors straddled the art historical mainstream and their new self-orientalizing aesthetics of locality The study reveals how

Orientalism was embraced by its very objects the self styled Orientals of the modern world as a marker of authenticity and a strategically located aesthetic tool to project universally recognizable images of cultural difference Rejecting the lesser subsidiary status ascribed to non western Orientalisms Ersoy s work contributes to recent post Saidian directions in the study of cultural representation that resituate the field of Orientalism beyond its polaristic core recognizing its cross cultural potential as a polyvalent discourse

Studies in Tectonic Culture Kenneth Frampton,2001-08-24 Composed of ten essays and an epilogue that trace the history of contemporary form as an evolving poetic of structure and construction the book s analytical framework rests on Frampton s close readings of key French and German and English sources from the eighteenth century to the present

Kenneth Frampton's long awaited follow up to his classic A Critical History of Modern Architecture is certain to influence any future debate on the evolution of modern architecture. Studies in Tectonic Culture is nothing less than a rethinking of the entire modern architectural tradition. The notion of tectonics as employed by Frampton, the focus on architecture as a constructional craft, constitutes a direct challenge to current mainstream thinking on the artistic limits of postmodernism and suggests a convincing alternative. Indeed, Frampton argues modern architecture is invariably as much about structure and construction as it is about space and abstract form. Composed of ten essays and an epilogue that trace the history of contemporary form as an evolving poetic of structure and construction, the book's analytical framework rests on Frampton's close readings of key French and German and English sources from the eighteenth century to the present. He clarifies the various turns that structural engineering and tectonic imagination have taken in the work of such architects as Perret, Wright, Kahn, Scarpa, and Mies and shows how both constructional form and material character were integral to an evolving architectural expression of their work. Frampton also demonstrates that the way in which these elements are articulated from one work to the next provides a basis upon which to evaluate the works as a whole. This is especially evident in his consideration of the work of Perret, Mies, and Kahn and the continuities in their thought and attitudes that linked them to the past. Frampton considers the conscious cultivation of the tectonic tradition in architecture as an essential element in the future development of architectural form, casting a critical new light on the entire issue of modernity and on the place of much work that has passed as avant garde. The Ethical Architect Tom Spector, 2012-04-17 Many believe that the moral mission of architecture has been in serious decline for the last 25 years. In this important new book, Tom Spector points out the dilemmas of architectural practice and offers a theoretical and practical basis for an examination and transformation of the quandaries the profession now faces. What makes a good building or a good architect? Are there limits to an architect's ethical or legal responsibilities in a building process where architecture plays an increasingly smaller role? Is preservation a moral imperative? What happens when building codes and ethical responsibilities are in conflict? In The Ethical Architect, Spector investigates the moral underpinnings and implications of leading architectural theories, subjecting them to the analytical techniques of moral philosophy. His conclusions provide a road map to help architects make the right decision in the difficult tradeoffs that confront designers on a daily basis. Spector estimates that more than 100,000 decisions go into the design of an average sized building. The Ethical Architect is a work of theory but refers to real buildings and real world problems. It is Spector's call to arms for his profession and a must read for practicing architects and students alike.

Manual of Section Paul Lewis, Marc Tsutsumaki, David J. Lewis, 2016-08-23 Along with plan and elevation, section is one of the essential representational techniques of architectural design. Among architects and educators, debates about a project's section are common and often intense. Until now, however, there has been no framework to describe or evaluate it. Manual of Section fills this void. Paul Lewis

Marc Tsurumaki and David J Lewis have developed seven categories of section revealed in structures ranging from simple one story buildings to complex structures featuring stacked forms fantastical shapes internal holes inclines sheared planes nested forms or combinations thereof To illustrate these categories the authors construct sixty three intricately detailed cross section perspective drawings of built projects many of the most significant structures in international architecture from the last one hundred years based on extensive archival research Manual of Section also includes smart and accessible essays on the history and uses of section
