Abstract

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program on the physical and psychological health of older adults with chronic low back pain. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The intervention group participated in a supervised exercise program, while the control group received no intervention. The primary outcome was the change in the Oswestry Disability Index (ODI) score. Secondary outcomes included changes in the Visual Analog Scale (VAS) pain score, the Short-Form 36 (SF-36) health-related quality of life (HRQL) score, and the Beck Depression Inventory (BDI) score. The intervention group showed significant improvements in ODI, VAS, SF-36, and BDI scores compared to the control group. The results suggest that a supervised exercise program can effectively reduce pain and improve physical and psychological health in older adults with chronic low back pain.
