Abstract— This paper presents a comparison between the Direct-On-Line (D.O.L.), and Soft Starter by using MATLAB Simulink. The purpose of this project is to find out the theoretical and actual characteristics of Induction motor. These three basic starting methods which different the irrespective wiring connection are the most applicable and widely-used starting method in the industrial area due to its economic reasons. This project is done by analyzing the characteristics during the motor starting by using the MATLAB Simulation to capture the waveforms of these events. After the Simulation, the three different starting method are being compared to conclude the most suitable and applicable starting method.

Keywords— D.O.L., Star-Delta, soft Starter.

INTRODUCTION

A 3-phase induction motor is theoretically self starting. The stator of an induction motor consists of 3-phase windings, which when connected to a 3-phase supply creates a rotating magnetic field. This will link and cut the rotor conductors which in turn will induce a current in the rotor conductors and create a rotor magnetic field. The magnetic field created by the rotor will interact with the rotating magnetic field in the stator and produce rotation. Therefore, 3-phase induction motors employ a starting method not to provide a starting torque at the rotor, but because it reduce heavy starting currents and prevent motor from overheating. Provide overload and no-voltage protection. There are many methods in use to start 3-phase induction motors. Some of the common methods we are using is Direct On-Line Starter (DOL), Star-Delta Starter and Soft Starter.

1. Direct-On-Line Starter (D.O.L) Starting Method

This is by far the most common starting method available on the market. The starting equipment consists of only a main contractor and thermal or electronic overload relay. The disadvantage with this method is that it gives the highest possible starting current. A normal value is between 6 to 7 times the rated motor current but values of up to 9 or 10 times the rated current exist. Besides the starting current there also exists a current peak that can rise up to 14 times the rated current since the motor is not energized from the first moment when starting.

The values are dependent on the design and size of the motor, but in general, a smaller motor gives higher values than a larger one. During a direct-on-line start, the starting torque is also very high, and is higher than necessary for most applications. The torque is the same as the force, and an unnecessary high force gives unnecessary high stresses on couplings and the driven application. Naturally, there are cases where this starting method works perfectly and in some cases also the only starting method that works.
