Changing Contours of Criminal Justice Mary Bosworth, Carolyn Hoyle, Lucia Zedner, 2016-11-17

Celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Oxford Centre for Criminology this edited collection of essays seeks to explore the changing contours of criminal justice over the past half century and to consider possible shifts over the next few decades. The question of how social science disciplines develop and change does not invite any easy answer with the task made all the more difficult given the highly politicised nature of some subjects and the volatile evolving status of its institutions and practices. A case in point is criminal justice at once fairly parochial much criminal justice scholarship is now global in its reach and subject areas that are now accepted as central to its study victims restorative justice security privatization terrorism citizenship and migration to name just a few were topics unknown to the discipline half a century ago. Indeed most criminologists would have once stoutly denied that they had anything to do with it. Likewise some central topics of past criminological attention like probation have largely receded from academic attention and some central criminal justice institutions like Borstal and corporal punishment have at least in Europe been abolished. Although the rapidity and radical nature of this change make it quite impossible to predict what criminal justice will look like in fifty years time reflection on such developments may assist in understanding how it arrived at its current form and hint at what the future holds. The contributors to this volume have been invited to reflect on the impact Oxford criminology has had on the discipline providing a unique and critical discussion about the current state of criminal justice around the world and the origins and future implications of contemporary practice. All are leading internationally renowned criminologists whose work has defined and often re defined our understanding of criminal justice policy and literature Advances In Coastal Hydraulics Vijay Panchang,James M Kaihatu,2018-06-21 Advances in Coastal Hydraulics contains twelve papers that report on recent developments in several areas of coastal hydraulics The papers written by well regarded authors cover interesting topics such as the interaction of groundwater and coastal waters the use of remote sensing for coastal applications erosion in Arctic environments the impact of marine vegetation on coastal hydrodynamics new methods to examine the reliability of breakwater design the development of marine kinetic energy and methods for modeling coastal processes as well as their applications to small and large scales such as a harbor in Hawaii for design and the extensive coast of India for examining the effects of tsunamis and sea level rise The developments presented in this book could serve not only as a reference book but also as a starting point for new endeavors in the respective topics Essentials of Assessment Report Writing W.
