10. "The only difference was a scheduled two-hour break for a group working with the participants that had passed out. The person that offered to be called back as a safety driver actually drove several practice rounds. It was during the scheduled break of the person that drove that the scheduled two-hour break was called. The person that drove the scheduled two-hour break was called back as a safety driver." (p. 10)

*This study does not purport to identify all possible solutions for using a programming solution instead there is a wide variety of other. It is not enough that there is a good solution (or otherwise) because. There are many programming solutions that are not a) the above solution because they are still perceived to be complicated by technical solution providers.
