Trope, 1999-02-19 This informative volume presents the first comprehensive review of research and theory on dual process models of social information processing. Leading contributors review the basic assumptions of these approaches and review the ways they have been applied and tested in such areas as attitudes, stereotyping, person perception, memory and judgment. Also examined are the relationships between different sets of processing modes, the factors that determine their utilization and how they work in combination to affect responses to social information.
