Learning and Teaching in the Chinese Classroom Shane N. Phillipson, Bick-har Lam, 2011-10-01 A major concern of all education authorities around the world is the challenge that schools face in catering for learner diversity That this concern is shared by authorities in East Asia including the Education Bureau EDB of Hong Kong is surprising given the high academic achievement of students from this part of the world This book helps to meet this challenge for teachers in East Asia by focusing on specific research that helps explain the basis for diversity in the Chinese learner Although there are many textbooks that cover the basic principles of educational psychology few do not focus on the Chinese learner This book makes the link between the broad field of educational psychology and how these theories contribute to our understanding of the Chinese learner This book is unique in that it draws on recent research to illustrate the application of these theories thereby helping teachers and students in teacher education programmes understand the variability in student achievement Our book is based on the idea that the Chinese context is in many ways different to other cultural contexts and that teachers can make a difference to the outcomes of student learning We also draw on our many years of experience in educating future teachers where our students want us to focus on the Chinese classroom Our student teachers also want to be educated by professors who are themselves researchers In drawing on research about the Chinese learner we also bring to our student teachers the richness and value of educational research We also encourage our student teachers to think of themselves as professional researchers in terms of developing an understanding of the research literature and in finding solutions to their classroom problems

Bodies Out of Control Matthew Weinstein, 2010 What is the cultural politics of science health and disease in the U S Bodies Out of Control explores this question through a series of case studies From its in depth examination of the discussions of sickle cell anemia schistosomiasis and cancer in middle school and high school textbooks to its analysis of the news coverage of the anthrax attacks of 2001 the book reveals the entanglements of science colonialism nationalism and identity The book also explores how the meaning of science itself is worked through in public discourses offering alternatively medical salvation confusion and a vision of a world without pleasure Finally to explore what agency and a critical practice of engaging science in classrooms and elsewhere might look like the book turns to the writings of politicized human research subjects which demonstrate a spectrum of possibilities for more democratic engagements with science As a whole the book emphasizes the importance of engaging texts critically in science education and the ways that the cultural politics of science works through images of human and institutional bodies in and out of control Publisher's description
