Urban Transformations Ian Bentley, 2004-08-02 Cities affect every person's life yet across the traditional divides of class age gender and political affiliation armies of people are united in their dislike of the transformations that cities have undergone in recent times The physical form of the urban environment is not a designer add on to real social issues it is a central aspect of the social world Yet in many people's experience the cumulative impacts of recent urban development have created widely unloved urban places To work towards better loved urban environments we need to understand how current problems have arisen and identify practical action to address them Urban Transformations examines the crucial issues relating to how cities are formed how people use these urban environments and how cities can be transformed into better places Exploring the links between the concrete physicality of the built environment and the complex social economic political and cultural processes through which the physical urban form is produced and consumed Ian Bentley proposes a framework of ideas to provoke and develop current debate and new forms of practice
