Grief the Unseen Pain Lorraine Mitchell, 2016-12-06 This book is written by someone who has had many bereavements and life changes and has been through many types of grief Meant not as a text book but as a guide from a fellow sufferer the book covers not only the emotions of grief but also the many reasons for it The book is meant to help people understand the varied emotions grief can cause and also the unpredictability of those emotions lasting longer than people or the sufferer may realise Grief is a complete range of emotions that are most usually thought to be brought about by bereavement but there are other circumstances that happen in our lives that can cause a massive change that we have no control over In all these situations we can experience the full range of emotions we call grief Because grief is personal and can be caused by so many factors the depth of grief can vary from person to person and situation to situation This book aims to help people understand that it is OK to feel how you feel It acknowledges that the changes that happen can sometimes be devastating and aims to help people understand how to move forward because what ever you do there is no turning back This book is aimed at helping the people that are grieving their friends and family but it is also aimed at helping the reader understand that grief is something carried by a lot of people Maybe if we understand that we can understand why people may be grumpy or off hand and that they need our smile and kindness more than ever Part of the Written from Within Series

Invisible Loss Christina Rasmussen, 2024-06-18 From an acclaimed grief educator and the author of Second Firsts and Where Did You Go comes a road map to recognize and heal the unspoken often misunderstood experience of everyday loss so you can finally reenter and live your life in full Compared to most my problems are small I should be happy with what I've got Our inner judge often tells us grief is allowed for big losses but that we should tough out everyday heartbreak The loss of a loved one and a devastating divorce are likely to be accepted as grief events But what about moments when we feel overlooked disregarded or misunderstood This could look like rejection in the workplace lack of intimacy in a relationship being overlooked by friends or working in a position that's not a dream job These are losses society doesn't recognize mirror back to us or validate says acclaimed grief educator Christina Rasmussen As a result we don't recognize or validate them either This unacknowledged type of grief invisible losses that are often labeled as not worthy of recognition can be hard to define and may surface as feelings of anxiety depression angst or restlessness These are the moments when we shift perception of ourselves and can end up living in continuous survival mode without really recognizing or understanding why In Invisible Loss Rasmussen shines a light on this unrecognized form of grief Because we avoid invisible loss we don't process it instead we seek the protection of an endless waiting room in the hope that time will heal our wounds Here Rasmussen helps you meet your loss free from shame or guilt to explore The origin of your invisible loss and how you've coped along the way The five life reentry phases based on the Life Reentry Model Exercises to help you find your way out of the waiting room Guidance in reframing your thoughts toward your original self The entire world is silently grieving attempting to process a form of heartbreak unlike anything we've ever experienced We need a new language and road map for our invisible losses says Rasmussen This guide gives you the tools you need in order to heal move forward and embrace the life you were meant to lead

The Grief Walk Alister G. Hendery, 2024-05-09 This practical book is for people who are grieving for people who want to support them as they undertake the painful journey of grief and for anyone who wants to reflect on their own experiences of loss When Alister asked Isobel whose husband had died a few years before what would have helped her most then her response was immediate Someone who would walk with me Not people who would talk at me and give me answers but simply listen to me and walk with me The grief walk Grieving and loss are universal experiences but how you experience grief is unique to you In his ministry Alister has found that models of the stages of grief are unhelpful as is the idea of closure Instead he gives you permission to work through your grief in the ways and at the times that are helpful to you Alister explores disenfranchised grief that occurs when we are denied the right to grieve and our loss isn't recognised Our lives are marked by countless losses and we all carry grief about many losses in our life If we embrace our grief we can

journey on to something new and find fresh hope Praise for The Grief Walk The Grief Walk has a freshness and honesty about grief beginning with its imaginative title and sustained until the final affirmation of hope We all experience loss and grief in our lives But as Hendery writes until we name and acknowledge a loss and recognise that we have a right to grieve we are unable to come to terms with it He emphasises that grief doesn't follow a predetermined path and nor can we close it off like a tap He describes a perceived end process of closure as psychobabble While grief may not be permanently disabling we learn to encompass it This is not the same as closure Grief may find expression in different physical and emotional symptoms and we can't expect religious faith to provide a magical answer Finding someone who listens and understands who in a sense personifies the presence of God can help us with the grief journey The Grief Walk confronts the idea that grief is momentary or experienced in clearly defined stages and points to a hope This book is a gift for all who grieve or who walk with those who grieve John Meredith in Tui Motu Magazine Issue 253 October 2020 27 Far too often people present grieving as a one way process with well defined stages concluding with something they call closure I strongly reject such an extremely unhelpful model Alister does also he is clear that your grieving is unique to you Rev d Bosco Peters on Liturgy.co.nz This book will read you as you are reading it It is a book you will pick up and put down and pick up and put down as you find yourself walking again through parts of your life maybe unexpectedly rediscovering boggy patches you had forgotten or not realised are still painful There is ancient wisdom here alongside modern psychology There is gentleness and there is a reality faced that grief is universal painful and not always an easy walk But beware As I read Alister's words I found myself thinking lamenting crying and laughing I surprised myself with the depth of some of what rose to the surface for me Ancient griefs recent disappointments and the ambivalent feelings that came like fish to breathe the air again From the Foreword by The Rev d Rob Ferguson Contents Title and Copyright Foreword Preface Acknowledgements How I use certain Words Authors who have Influenced Me 1 Introduction 2 Our Lives are Laden with Losses Acknowledging our Losses Disenfranchised Losses and Griefs 3 Experiences of Disenfranchised Loss and Grief Grieving for Those Still Living Living Loss and Disability Relational Loss Divorce and Dissolution Relational Loss Ending of a Romantic Relationship Unrecognised Relationships The Loss of a Companion Animal Material Losses Infertility and Childlessness Grief in Foster Care The Losses of Miscarriage and Stillbirth Loss from Medical Termination Loss of Employment Discovering Disenfranchisement 4 Understandings and Misunderstandings about Grief Our Loss and Grief is Unique so Forget the Rules There's No One Size Fits All so Forget Stages in Grief We Wax and Wane so it's Okay to Retreat from Time to Time A Continual Presence Which can Ambush us so Forget the Timeline Continuing Bonds So Forget about Having to Let Go Grief Doesn't get Closed Off so Forget about Closure Our Life has Changed so Forget the idea of Returning to Normal We Grieve in Our Own Way so Forget the Stereotypes 5 Experiencing Grief More than Sadness Grief Isolates Experiencing Grief in our Body Experiencing Grief in our Emotions Experiencing Grief in our Thinking and Mental processes Experiencing Grief in our Behaviour Experiencing Grief
