Simulation, Modeling, and Programming for Autonomous Robots Noriako Ando, Stephen Balakirsky, Thomas Hemker, Monica Reggiani, Oskar von Stryk, 2010-11-11 Why are the many highly capable autonomous robots that have been promised for novel applications driven by society industry and research not available day despite the tremendous progress in robotics science and systems achieved during the last decades Unfortunately steady improvements in specific robot abilities and robot hardware have not been matched by corresponding robot performance in real world environments This is mainly due to the lack of advancements in robot software that master the development of robotic systems of ever increasing complexity In addition fundamental open problems are still awaiting sound answers while the development of new robotics applications suffers from the lack of widely used tools libraries and algorithms that are redesigned in a modular and performant manner with standardized interfaces Simulation environments are playing a major role not only in reducing development time and cost e.g. by systematic software or hardware in the loop testing of robot performance but also in exploring new types of robots and applications. However, their use may still be regarded with skepticism. Seamless migration of code using robot simulators to real world systems is still a rare circumstance due to the complexity of robot world sensor and actuator modeling. These challenges drive the quest for the next generation of methodologies and tools for robot development. The objective of the International Conference on Simulation Modeling and Programming for Autonomous Robots (SIMPAR) is to offer a unique forum for these topics and to bring together researchers from academia and industry to identify and solve the key issues necessary to ease the development of increasingly complex robot software.

Thermo-Hydro-Mechanical-Chemical Processes in Fractured Porous Media: Modelling and Benchmarking Olaf Kolditz, Thomas Nagel, Hua Shao, Wenqing Wang, Sebastian Bauer, 2018-03-01. The book comprises the 3rd collection of benchmarks and examples for porous and fractured media mechanics. Analysis of thermo hydro mechanical chemical (THMC) processes is essential to a wide area of applications in environmental engineering such as geological waste deposition, geothermal energy utilization, shallow and deep systems, carbon capture and storage (CCS) as well as water resources management and hydrology. In order to assess the feasibility, safety as well as sustainability of geoenvironmental applications, model based simulation is the only way to quantify future scenarios. This charges a huge responsibility concerning the reliability of conceptual models and computational tools. Benchmarking is an appropriate methodology to verify the quality and validate the concept of models based on best practices. Moreover, benchmarking and code comparison are building strong community links. The 3rd THMC benchmark book also introduces benchmark based tutorials; therefore the subtitle is selected as 'From Benchmarking to Tutoring'. The benchmark book is part of the OpenGeoSys initiative, an open source project to share knowledge and experience in environmental analysis and scientific computation. The new version of OGS 6 is introduced and first benchmarks are presented therein; see appendices.
